

County Sales Tax Gets More Confusing

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN.

KINGSTON

The eight Kingston members of the County Legislature are unhappy about the turn of events which will present a sales tax resolution calling for one per cent at the Thursday night session of the county board.

A Republican member of their number, Melvin Mones has indicated that he will offer an amendment to the county-wide sales tax measure asking that the figure be raised to three per cent with equal shares going to the City of Kingston and the county.

Mones said he has contacted many of the legislators and feels the amendment may find favor among those who had originally felt that one per cent was enough.

Has Been Under Study

The 32-page sales tax resolution is ready to be brought out of committee for a vote Thursday night. The proposal has been under study by the Tax Base Study Committee and the Finance Committee and the combined committee report recommends that one per cent levy be adopted with the receipts to be used for county purposes. The report notes that the money could be used for the capital projects proposed for this year, and may also leave enough revenue to further lower the county tax rate.

However, there are two other resolutions filed with the clerk of the county board which could further delay a vote on the sales tax measure.

One resolution filed by Joseph Martorana, R-9th District, would halt all action on adoption of a county sales tax until certain conditions are met such as enactment of a sales tax levy by local law after a series of public hearings; adoption of a sales tax on a regional basis only, concurrent with similar action by the neighboring counties of Dutchess and Orange; approval by the County Legislature and a provision that the percentage of sales tax will not be increased or decreased, or eliminated without further notice.

Another resolution filed by Martorana and William West, R-Woodstock, calls for establishment of a capital projects program by a newly formed Capital Projects Committee. The committee would prepare a six-year capital program plan detailing costs and priorities. The resolution suggests that the list of priorities should include further expansion at the Community College, recreation facilities and a master plan for highways in the county. The committee would consist of seven members including one each from the Legislature's Tax Base Study and the Finance Committees.

The sales tax resolution calling for three per cent was referred to the combined committees at the December meeting by a vote of 19 to 14.

The report of the combined committees filed last Wednesday for presentation at the Feb. 13 session of the county board advises that one per cent would be sufficient to carry out the capital construction programs under consideration, and would leave enough additional revenue to further reduce the county tax rate charged back to the townships and the City of Kingston.

The sales tax, which has been a topic of continuing discussion among county and city officials and businessmen, was the subject of a meeting between all three at the Governor Clinton Hotel Monday night.

The meeting, described as informal and of a general nature on the tax, was sponsored by the Local Government Affairs Committee of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

No Positions Taken

No formal positions were taken but it was agreed that meetings between interested parties on pending legislation should take place well before the legislation is enacted.

Stanley London, of London's on North Front Street chaired the meeting. Participants included County Legislators Peter J. Savago of New Paltz Douglas Dye, (District Two), Mones, Raichle, Lester C. Elmendorf (District Two) and Irving P. Maurer (District Seven). Alderman John E. Finch (D-Fifth Ward) and Edward Norton (D-11th Ward) represented the city along with Deputy City Treasurer John Houghtaling. Businessmen included Philip Dolan of Sears, George Schneider, N. Jansen Fowler, Frank A. Reis, president of the Central Broadway Businessmen's Association; Paul Sullivan of Britt's, Clifford Bunting of Kingston Luggage, Adrian Kaplan of Kaplan's Furniture, Edward DeGroff, an insurance man, Joseph F. Brady and Daniel Terpening of the Kingston Savings Bank and Dr. Jeremiah Sachs, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Nixon Makes It Definite—West Berlin Still Included

WASHINGTON

(UPI)—

President Nixon, still drawing up the details of his European trip, is making sure the world knows he will not be swayed from his intention to visit West Berlin.

Twice in two days Nixon spokesmen have reaffirmed plans for the West Berlin visit, despite harassments directed against the city in recent days by the East German government.

The one-week trip, scheduled to start Feb. 23, was one of the subjects discussed during Nixon's long weekend in Florida and remained a major item on his desk after he returned to the White House Monday evening.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said, "The President will make the trip to West Berlin, and supports 'fully' the statement of the three Allied powers issued in Bonn that they did not respect East Germany's right to restrict land access to West Berlin.

Meanwhile, Leftist students in West Berlin today denounced President Nixon as a "reactionary" and said they would demonstrate when he comes here Feb. 27 on his European tour.

The student threats coincided with steadily mounting concern that a new Berlin crisis might be in the making and that it would concern Communist harassment of land routes to this city 110 miles inside East Germany.

There was speculation that Yakubovsky, commander of the Warsaw Pact forces, might foreshadow new harassment. He arrived only one day after the East Germans announced new restrictions on travel to Berlin for the March 5 election of the West German president.

Western officials said they believed there was no connection between the Yakubovsky visit and the ban on travel of electoral college members. But they said if new steps against West Berlin were being planned the Warsaw Pact commander would have to be consulted.

Major fears that the Communists might be planning a new Berlin squeeze were voiced Monday in Bonn by government spokesman Guenter Diehl. Diehl indicated the government thought the move against the electoral college might be a cover for something more serious.

The extremist students action brought more headaches to allied officials. The main threat came from the Free University Student Council, the executive body of the student "parliament" in West Berlin. It called Nixon "an agent of the reactionary wing of the American bourgeoisie."

Meanwhile, Western officials today said they fear the Communists might be planning to interfere with the vital supply shipments to isolated West Berlin.

They said traffic that passes the 110 miles through East Germany to the city might be harassed under the pretext of blocking ground travel to a meeting here of the West German electoral college to elect a new West German president March 5. The travel ban begins Saturday.

Officials said they did not know what the East Germans were planning and most thought there would be no new Berlin crisis or major East-West dispute.

The Western Allies told the Russians Monday that they would be held responsible for any East German harassment of Berlin traffic.

But fears that the East Germans might be planning a new Berlin squeeze were voiced Monday in the West German capital of Bonn by government spokesman Guenter Diehl.

Diehl indicated the government is concerned with the possibility that the Communists move against the electoral college is a cover for something more serious.

Freeman to Sponsor Dale Carnegie Course

KINGSTON Richard L. Treat, general manager of The Kingston Daily Freeman announced today that this paper will act as sponsor of the world famous Dale Carnegie Course soon to begin in Kingston.

Public Service
"We are bringing the course to our community because we feel it is in the interest of public service," Treat said.

During the forming of the class here, this newspaper will publish a series of feature articles by Mike Rothenberger, staff representative of Dale Carnegie and Associates, Inc.,

New York. The series is entitled, I Will Prepare Myself.

The organization of this class will be under the direction of Hal Schultz of Poughkeepsie, area manager for John F. Heron and Associates of Albany, who offer the course in Eastern New York State.

"The Dale Carnegie Course, for more than a half a century, has been helping men and women to live happier, richer and more successful lives through the discovery and development of their hidden talents and potential abilities," Schultz said, "such as the development of greater self-confidence, a keen memory and more effective powers of communication." He added that many people take the course primarily because they want a broader understanding of human relations. They want to know how to get along even more graciously with people whether it be in a business or social situation or at home.

Million Plus Graduated

Schultz reported that during its 57 years of operation the Dale Carnegie Course has graduated well over a million men and women and is now offered in 50 states and in many foreign countries.

Anyone who is interested in more information about the Dale Carnegie Course may write or call The Freeman, FE 1-5000.

New Jersey Back, Rips 64 Bunkers

SAIGON (AP) — The battleship New Jersey returned to the Vietnam war after a month off the firing line and smashed 64 enemy bunkers south of Da Nang, military spokesmen reported today.

For four hours Monday, the 56,000-ton battlewagon hurled 1,900-pound shells at North Vietnamese fortifications which an air spotter said "have been impervious to previous strikes."

The New Jersey's bombardment was in support of South Korean marines and killed at least five enemy soldiers, a spokesman reported.

The battleship had been in Japan for routine maintenance and replenishment of her supplies.

The U.S. Command also announced another American helicopter was shot down and destroyed near Pleiku, in the Central Highlands, but there were no casualties. It was the 2,356th U.S. helicopter lost during the war.

Step Up Ground War

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces stepped up their ground war during the night with attacks on three provincial capitals, two allied bases, a pacification team and a government infantry battalion. The North Vietnamese also fired on a small U.S. observation plane over the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone but missed it.

South Vietnamese troops were hard hit in two of the attacks, suffering 24 dead and 53 wounded while accounting for only 14 known enemy dead. The rest of the attacks caused only a handful of American and South Vietnamese wounded and light damage.

In the Mekong Delta, 102 miles southwest of Saigon, Viet Cong soldiers ripped into a South Vietnamese infantry battalion with withering machine-gun and small arms fire. After the action, 12 South Vietnamese soldiers were dead, 35 were wounded, and only seven enemy bodies were counted. The South Vietnamese soldiers may have been ambushed in the canal-laced delta, but no other details were available.

Another heavy assault came before dawn when enemy forces pumped 50 to 100 mortar rounds into Phu Bon, a provincial capital in the Central Highlands, and then stormed the town's military headquarters, firing bazooka rockets and small arms.

Again 12 South Vietnamese soldiers and at least seven of the enemy were killed, five or six civilians were also killed, and the wounded included 18 government troops and five or six civilians.

Two Break Through

An officer in the town said only two enemy soldiers were able to break through the barbed wire perimeter surrounding the camp and both were killed in the 50-minute fight.

The sprawling Da Nang air base and a U.S. and South Vietnamese army base 57 miles northwest of Saigon also were shelled.

No casualties or damage were reported at Da Nang, where nine 122mm rockets fell. The U.S. Command said some Americans were wounded in the 10-round rocket attack on the army base northwest of Saigon, but there were no fatalities. No South Vietnamese casualties were reported, and damage to the base was light.

The stepup in enemy activity came only four days before the beginning of the seven-day cease-fire the Viet Cong has proclaimed for Tet, the celebration of the lunar new year. The Saigon government still has not proclaimed its cease-fire period.

Moving Into Position

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence reports indicated that the Viet Cong's 5th Division has slipped between American outposts along the Cambodian border and is moving into position for a possible strike against Saigon. The division is believed to number as many as 10,000 troops, including large numbers of North Vietnamese regulars.

Two battalions of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, flying in helicopter fleets and backed up by huge "flying cranes" carrying their artillery, rushed into the War Zone D northeast of Saigon in an effort to halt the enemy advance.

A Strategy Session Before the Talks

PARIS (UPI)—American and

South Vietnamese delegates held a strategy session today in the wake of a North Vietnamese warning the allies must accept unconditionally "all the legitimate demands" put forward by the Communists.

Chief American negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge and his Saigon counterpart Pham Dang Lam met for 30 minutes at the U.S. Embassy to prepare for Thursday's negotiating session with Hanoi and Viet Cong negotiators. The allies are expected to make new attempts to unlock the deadlocked Vietnam peace talks Thursday.

Outlook Dim

The outlook for an early compromise appeared dim, though American negotiators had vowed to show patience.

Lodge and Lam met 24 hours after Nhan Dan, newspaper of the North Vietnamese Workers (Communist) party, served notice that the Americans and their Saigon allies must accept unconditionally North Vietnam's four point, and the Viet Cong's five point program for a solution of the conflict. The American delegation already has rejected the demand as an invitation to "abandon and surrender."

Lam later told newsmen he was surprised by the stiff tone of the Hanoi newspaper. He expressed the hope that Thursday's meeting will not indicate a sudden hardening of the Communist position.

American officials maintained secrecy over preparations for Thursday's fourth session of the Paris talks which opened Jan. 18. Saigon demand discussion of military matters come first.

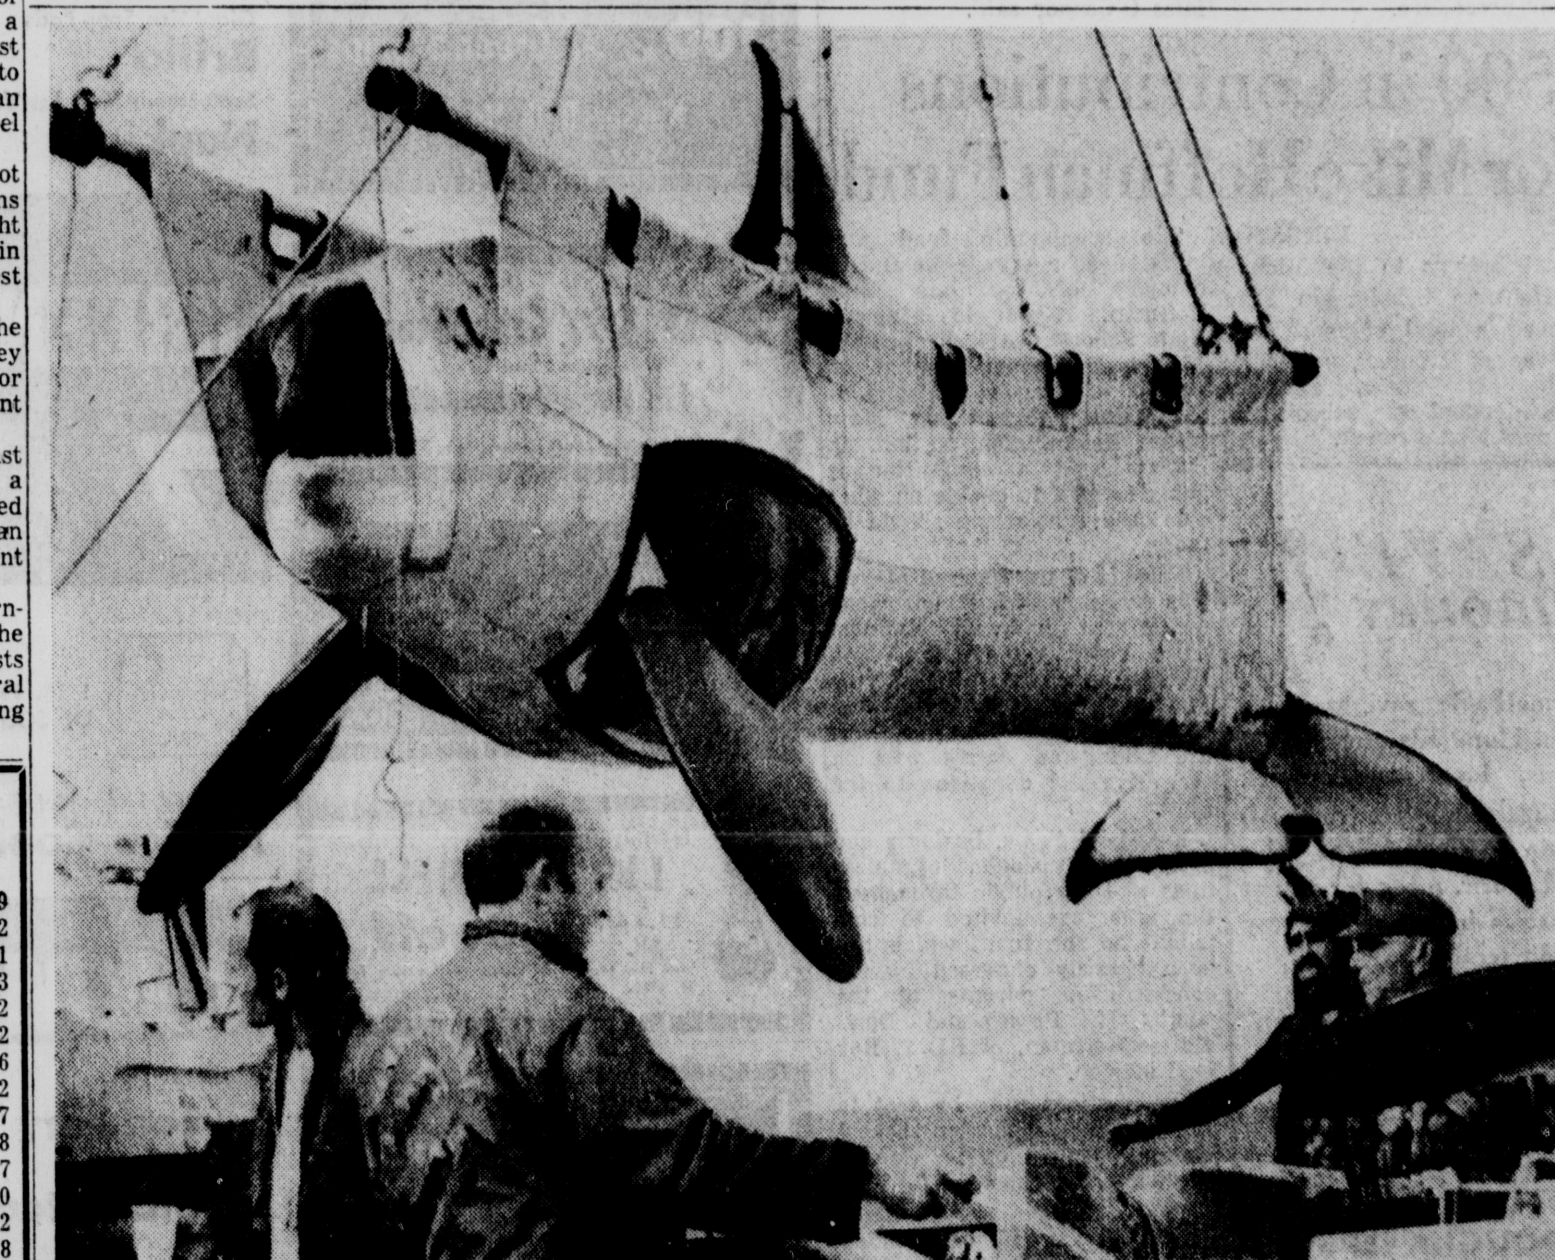

Vietnamese delegation said Saigon did not expect its adversaries to make concessions in the near future.

Possible Pressure

Western diplomatic sources said the Soviet Union, anxious to improve the chances for a prospective summit meeting with the United States, may put pressure on Hanoi to show itself more conciliatory in Paris.

Diplomats said the Soviets now may urge Hanoi to display a conciliatory mood in the current quarrel over which complex problem to tackle first—a dispute which has pushed the Paris talks into a virtual deadlock.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong demand discussion first of South Vietnam's political future. Washington and Saigon demand discussion of military matters come first.

Crewmen Summoned To Pueblo Inquiry

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — More intelligence crewmen were summoned to tell the Navy today how much of the USS Pueblo's classified material was destroyed before the ship was captured by North Koreans.

Their testimony was secret, the Navy said, "because of the sensitivity of much of what they're talking about" and because its disclosure could harm national defense.

The intelligence crewmen, called communications technicians, were summoned to a court of inquiry investigating the Pueblo's capture last year. Of the 83 aboard, 29 were communications technicians.

The head intelligence detachment was Lt. Stephen Harris, who told the court last week his staff didn't destroy all of the secret material because of North Korean gunfire, "a painfully slow" burning process, what he described as excessive amount of material and heavy smoke.

Today's testimony would be similar, the Navy said, to testimony Monday from the Pueblo's chief communications technician, Ralph D. Bouden, of Washington, D.C., and a member of his team, James Francis Kell, of Honolulu.

Bouden and Kell testified with "particular emphasis on what took place within the research intelligence spaces on the Pueblo when the ship was captured," the Navy said.

"We tried to tear up the publications," Harris has told the court. "We reduced them to confetti. There was paper all over the place. We were feverish."

"We tried to keep it as orderly as possible, but it actually resulted in a great deal of confusion."

When it was over the North Koreans boarded the Pueblo and there were some secret papers in his intelligence compartment, Harris said.

Harris estimated it would have taken 10 to 12 hours to destroy all of the Pueblo's secret papers.

The Pueblo's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, said he would take the stand again near the end of the court of inquiry to give further testimony about his imprisonment with his crew.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., said today that if there is an attempt to make scapegoats out of Bucher and his crew it will "provoke a most vigorous reaction" in Congress.

His comment came in a speech prepared for a Republican gathering in Nebraska.

Hruska said "Several members of the Senate Armed Services Committee have indicated that the committee will proceed to look into the matter."

Steward Becomes Hero In Latest Hijacking

MIAMI (UPI)—Airline steward Vincent Doccio stood between a 250-pound professional wrestler and a 300-pound hijacker with a gun and managed to keep the peace, but he isn't sure just how.

"I can't remember just what I said to him. As far as I was concerned it was a very desperate situation. But the wrestler bumped into me and stopped...he didn't try to go any further," said Doccio, a 170-pounder.

Doccio was the hero of Eastern Air Lines Flight 950, a DC8 "stretch jet" flying from San Juan to Miami with 111 passengers and eight crewmen Monday when it was hijacked to Cuba.

The plane landed in Havana about 11 a.m. EST and was released some five hours later. The passengers were allowed to fly back on the jet, a break in recent procedure.

In nine previous hijackings of U.S. commercial aircraft this year, and most of the 14 such incidents of 1968, the Cuban authorities forced the passengers to transfer by bus some 90 miles to Varadero Airport to be picked up by another plane.

Capt. William C. Latimer of Miami, pilot of the Monday flight, said the Cubans gave him no indication why they were making things easier for the passengers on his flight.

Latimer said the hijacker was a fat Latin man who identified himself to the stewardess he held hostage—blonde, 23-year-old Susanne O'Connor—as Peter Alvarez. He told her he had a divorced wife and two children in Miami, but that he lived in San Juan. He said he was returning to Cuba because his father was sick there "and he felt this was his only recourse," Miss O'Connor said.

$500 in Contributions For Mike Hoffman Fund

KINGSTON The scholarship fund was initiated as a tribute to and in memory of the late Mike Hoffman, 17-year-old Kingston High School quarterback, who died in Kingston Hospital on Feb. 3 of injuries suffered in a traffic accident on Main Street, Bloomington, on Jan. 26.

Shaw said a committee is being formed to decide on what basis the scholarship should be made.

Friends of the football player, who was honored not long before the untimely accident when voted by Coach Frank Modica and the rest of the Maroon football staff as the Most Improved Player of 1968, are taking an active part in the drive for donations to the fund.

Industrial firms, business and professional people, organizations and the public throughout the area are invited to contribute to the fund, which has been heartily endorsed by the grief-stricken parents of the youth, H. Peter and Doris Wiltse Hoffman, of RD 2, Box 44, Kingston.

Contributions may be sent to Shaw at the Kingston School System business office, George Washington School, 67 Wall Street.

Hoffman was to have attended North Carolina State University at Raleigh on a full 4-year scholarship this fall.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A blonde schoolgirl cheerleader, held under threat of death for 10½ hours, darted to safety Monday night as police gunfire killed her pistol-waving captor.

Janie Lewis, 17, escaped harm as the tense drama ended in a cafeteria where a long-haired parolee had confined her in a booth, rejecting repeated pleas to free the young woman.

Officers identified the slain man as Freddie Robert Mullins, 21, of Dallas. They said he had served a term for armed robbery in Minnesota.

As many as 500 persons assembled at times to watch what was taking place at the Big Town shopping center in suburban Mesquite, just outside the East Dallas city limit. Heavily armed police kept the crowd at a safe distance.

Mesquite Police Chief L. H. Limmer, 33, said he motioned with his eyes for Miss Lewis to run behind a retaining wall in the cafeteria when Mullins finally diverted attention from her to unscrew a light bulb in a low-hanging chandelier.

Three bullets pierced Mullins' chest and he died as he fell. Limmer estimated a dozen shots were fired, including three from his own pistol as the police chief ducked behind a table only 10 feet from Mullins.

Other officers reported Mullins got off a single shot from his .22-caliber weapon.

Police Sgt. L. C. Tidwell said it was about 11 a.m. when he stopped Mullins and a companion, Richard Lauderdale, to check their driver's licenses. As the licenses were handed back, Tidwell related, Mullins pulled a gun and both youths jumped from their car and ran.

Two warning shots from Tidwell halted Lauderdale but Mullins dashed into the cafeteria nearby.

The long vigil followed. Limmer and others talked to Mullins time and again trying to persuade him to release his hostage. Officers said he never gave a motive for holding her or voiced any conditions for freeing her.

"We felt he wouldn't let her go without hurting her," said the police chief, who said he offered to trade places with Miss Lewis but Mullins would not permit him to do so.

Cheerleader Escapes, Captor Killed

Shaw Trial Witness: 'Bull Session' Possible

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The all-male jury in the Clay L. Shaw trial has the opinion of the star state witness that the presidential assassination plotting of which Shaw is accused could as easily have been "an inconsequential bull session" as a serious scheme.

Perry Raymond Russo, 27, book salesman, sometime cab driver, and sports buff who has provided the principal public evidence in the two-year battle of Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison to prove the Warren Report erred in saying there was no evidence of conspiracy, said he had even cold people it could have been a bull session.

In mid-September, 1963, in David W. Ferrie's apartment, Russo testified, he listened while Ferrie, 49, did most of the talking in the alleged plot.

Talking with him, Russo testified, were his roommate Lee Harvey Oswald, whom the witness knew as "Leon," and the dignified and culturally inclined Shaw, who was introduced as Clem Bertrand.

On cross examination by defense attorney F. Irvin Dymond, Russo said he had not been there all the time in the 3 to 4 hour session.

Under Dymond's questioning, Russo said Ferrie "was screwy but sharp—a paradox of a personality; he spoke 11 languages and claimed to have five degrees, and you'd think he'd be doing something better. He was prone toward the spectacular."

"You mean to infer that Ferrie was a little on the crazy side?" Dymond asked.

"I've always thought so," replied Russo.

Ferrie died of a brain hemorrhage four days after Garrison announced his probe. "Is it not a fact that the gators three times before he detailed the conspiracy during a hearing in March, 1967."

"Yes," Russo replied. "Is it not a fact that you have told people that it could well have been?"

"Yes," Russo has said he was hypnotized by Garrison investigation. "Is it not a fact that the gators three times before he detailed the conspiracy during a hearing in March, 1967."

Merrie Old England to Apache Land

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—You see this man, 50-ish, balding, wearing brown and white saddle shoes and yellow socks, and he tells you he has bought London Bridge. You look at the polished cotton chino slacks, the skinny brown and white tie, the sports jacket. And you might just under estimate him.

But no one under estimates 57-year-old Robert P. McCulloch without taking a licking one way or the other. If he has his own ideas of what a man wears to the office, and if he desires to bring a touch of Merrie Olde England to Apache country, well, that's how it is.

In money matters, anyway, you don't argue with a man who parlayed a $2,500 loan in 1936 into a four-corporation empire

Safe in Jail

WILLIAMS, Airz. (AP) — The Williams jail had unusual lodgers when an art show came to town.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Bob Sharp and City Manager Mike McNulty were worried about $50,000 worth of paintings from Taos, N.M., in Williams for a week before a weekend art carnival. They agreed that the safest place for the treasures was the local pokey.

LONDON BRIDGE FALLING DOWN — Robert P. McCulloch, a director of the McCulloch, Oil Corporation of California, stands in front of the London Bridge in London. The corporation purchased the bridge for $2,460,000 and it will be rebuilt at Lake Havasu City in Arizona. And you don't argue with this man, even with the announcement of the bridge purchase. He parlayed a $2,500 loan in 1936 into a four-corporation empire which bears his name and grosses $75 million a year. By the time the bridge stands over the Colorado River, at least $5 million will have been spent on it, including transportation and reconstruction. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

which bears his name and companies is publicly held. McCulloch was best known for his light chain saws. That's McCulloch Oil, which is developing Lake Havasu City in the Arizona desert and where the London Bridge will be reconstructed, stone by stone, over the Colorado River.

Before the London Bridge venture made him somewhat of a celebrity, the St. Louis-born man chain saw in 1948. It was a 49-pound, 5-horsepower model and in two years it captured 60 per cent of the market. Last year he introduced a model plane and was developed by McCulloch Aircraft Corp.

Stormy Wait

Stranded travelers, left, spend the long hours with a card game at the New York State Armory, North Manor Avenue. When snow and high winds forced closing of the Thruway Sunday night approximately 60 persons were housed at the armory in makeshift accommodations. Most of the travelers got back on the road yesterday but this group, part of chartered bus excursion, had to wait out the opening of the Thruway to New York City and expected to get underway sometime today. The conditions which caused the Thruway closing are obvious from this view (right) of the Route 209 By Pass to Kingston Route 28 South. The superhighway, closed from Albany to New York City for the first time since it opened in 1954, was reopened from Albany to Suffern at 11:15 a.m. yesterday. The Suffern to New York City section remains closed due to abandoned vehicles along the route. Drifting snow still clogs roads in southern Ulster County where some school closings were reported this morning. (Freeman photos by Haines.)

Storm Aftermath

For Most—It's Still Dig We Must

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON County highway crews continue to battle drifts up to eight feet in southern Ulster today as the snowy, blowy weekend storm settles down to just plain winter cold.

Road crews in the city and the county saved Ulster from the snowbound fate of most of the northeast. In Kingston, Board of Public Works personnel are continuing the snow loading operations in the uptown area. The streets are in "good shape" and plaudits rather than pans have been the gist of telephone calls received by that department.

Some Schools Still Closed
The county highway crews are moving into southern Ulster with heavy equipment today in an effort to clear wind packed drifts from some areas. School closings down county were reported this morning. Other, wide roads throughout the county are passable.

While the majority of Ulster

County schools were closed Monday, the Ellenville Central School District operated on schedule thanks to the efforts of the Wawarsing Highway Department.

Town Supervisor Frank W. Harkin said every school bus was on time and although attendance was down a little, all classes including afternoon kindergarten were open.

Hyde Park, Rhinebeck and Red Hook schools were still closed today and it is expected that Red Hook will remain closed for the rest of the week.

Metros Still Paralyzed
Metropolitan areas and parts of New England were still paralyzed in the giant storm's aftermath.

The New York State Thruway, which was closed between Albany and New York City Sunday night, reopened as far south as Suffern yesterday morning.

The main problem between that point and New York City is car removal, not snow removal at this point.

View From the Bridge
More than 1,000 travelers were marooned on the three alternate routes were open from Suffern to the metropolis.

The Berkshire section of the Thruway was open to cars but not trucks this morning. The Thruway leads into the Massachusetts Turnpike which is also clogged with abandoned vehicles. National Guardsmen have been called out to assist in clearing the turnpike. The link between New York and Greenwich, Conn., where it joins the state New York and portions of New England.

This was the week of winter wonderland—wonder if the car will start, wonder if the road is open, wonder if delivery trucks can get through, wonder when it will be spring.

The Cold Staying

No more snow is expected in the beleaguered big city but temperatures are expected to

Rail Odyssey of Going Nowhere

ABOARD TRAIN No. 63 (AP)
—A Penn Central passenger train pulled into Buffalo's Central Terminal Monday night ending an odyssey that began in New York City 29 hours earlier for many of its riders.

A combination of adverse weather and malfunctioning equipment caused the protracted journey—under normal circumstances a trip of no longer than nine hours by rail.

Much of the time was spent going nowhere. Passengers rushing to catch Train No. 63, scheduled to leave New York's Grand Central Station at 10:30 p.m. Sunday, need not have hurried. After a series of delays blamed on crew shortages, a disabled train in the station tunnel and a defective engine, No. 63 left Gate 34 at 6:00 a.m. Monday—seven and one half hours late—for Upstate New York points, Erie, Pa., Cleveland and Chicago.

Reduced to Crawl
Once clear of the station, the train's progress was reduced to a crawl as snow covering the track's third rail prevented first the electric locomotive then the electrically driven wheels of two diesel replacements from making good contact.

The train crept toward the Croton-Harmon station, a major switching point in northern Westchester County, reaching its 30-mile destination in three hours.

There, No. 63 took on 200 or so refugees from two earlier trains that had broken down.

Tales of transportation woes were abundant.

A Marist College student told how he had been aboard three trains in efforts to get to his Poughkeepsie campus from New York.

He finally completed the 75-mile trip in just under 21 hours, about 19 more than usual.

Passengers from Train No. 61, which left New York at 6:35 p.m. Sunday, said they spent the night in unheated and unlighted railroad cars after the locomotive broke down ten miles from its starting point.

During a five-hour long stop at the Croton-Harmon station where workmen hooked a snow-resistant diesel onto No. 63 and freed frozen track switches, the riders' good humor became strained.

Things brightened, however, as the train traveled up the Hudson Valley and westward to Buffalo.

The Penn Central provided sandwiches and coffee at the Albany-Rensselaer station and a steak dinner at Utica, where a railroad secretary also was on hand to make telephone calls and send telegrams for the passengers.

An interested observer of his fellow riders was Dr. Monroe Arien, a young psychiatrist from Cleveland returning home with his wife from a week-long meeting on group psychotherapy.

Mutual Therapy

Arien said he thought he saw a successful type of mutual therapy among the passengers who banded together against a "common adversary"—the railroad—and relieved their tensions.

He said a "natural leader" emerged from the group in Lou Port, who distributes beauty supplies and equipment and owns a beauty school and beauty parlor in Elmira.

Among other passengers aboard the train were:

—A 72-year-old Manhattan resident traveling to the bedside of his critically ill, 74-year-old brother in Chicago.

—A woman acting as traveling companion to three Yorkshire Terrier dogs who had appeared in a competition.

—Four servicemen returning to Griffiss Air Force Base near Rome from weekend passes.

When the train finally reached Buffalo, passengers who intended to continue further received more bad news. Penn Central officials said they had cancelled the remainder of Train 63's schedule and asked the riders to wait for a later train or arrange bus transportation.

The tired passengers were not pleased.

Mrs. Foster Was Treated At Benedictine

The Coronary Care Unit used in the treatment of Mrs. Amy Foster of Hurley when she suffered a heart seizure last year is located in Benedictine Hospital.

In Monday's Freeman it was inadvertently reported that the Hurley woman had been treated at the Kingston Hospital unit.

Fish Urges Rockefeller Help the Milk Farmers

WASHINGTON

Help for local farmers who are dumping their milk today because tank trucks have been snowbound came from Hamilton Fish Jr. who called on Gov. Rockefeller for "appropriate relief."

Fish said it was his understanding that a designation by the governor of an emergency or disaster area is necessary for the eventual obtaining of federal relief for loss of farm production.

Farmers of Dutchess and Columbia Counties are the hardest hit, Fish declared. The milk they sell mostly through the Dairymen's League and in the Connecticut market was either in their limited storage facilities or snow bound in parked trucks along highways. In addition, he said, many tank trucks were unable to leave their garages Monday after Sunday's big snowfall.

Congressman Fish said that prior to his call to the governor he was in touch with the milk producers association, agricultural agents and the highway department.

He said he would be in touch with the governor's office again today for appropriate action.

The Storm-Weary Legislature Back

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The storm-stalled legislature returned to its regular schedule today, with full working sessions scheduled in both the Senate and Assembly.

Both houses cancelled their customary Monday afternoon meetings when leaders realized that the heavy snowstorm that hit the eastern part of the state would prevent many lawmakers from reaching the Capitol in time.

"It was no real loss," said one legislative aide. "We didn't plan any heavy lifting anyway."

The major legislative activity this week is to come off the floor — via the annual public hearings on Gov. Rockefeller's budget, a $6.4-billion spending plan this year.

The Senate Finance Committee and Assembly Ways and Means Committee will conduct the hearings jointly, on Wednesday and Thursday, in the State Education Department's Chancellor's Hall.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges reaffirmed his plans to seek a vote Wednesday on a bill that would deny state financial aid to college students who commit crimes on campus. The measure, sponsored by Sen. John E. Flynn, R-Yonkers, is to be brought to a vote in the Senate on Wednesday.

The Republican-ruled Senate passed a similar measure last year but it was killed in the then Democratic-controlled Assembly. This year, however, the GOP also commands the Assembly, and Speaker Perry B. Duryea Jr. has indicated a willingness to let the measure come to a vote in his house.

It would take scholarship and scholar incentive money away from students convicted of crimes during campus demonstrations or other incidents.

Both houses went through the motions of meeting Monday, with a corporal's guard of lawmakers on hand merely to convene and recess the sessions.

This was done to comply with a law that prohibit either house from adjourning for more than three days without the consent of the other. The last working session was held last Wednesday, but a formal meeting—similar to Monday's—was conducted on Thursday to maintain the continuity.

Eshkol Fights A Challenge

By United Press International
Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol today fought against a no-confidence motion based on his reported willingness to surrender most of the Arab land occupied by Israel in the 1967 Middle East War.

In Jerusalem, the rightwing party motion challenging Eshkol's right to rule, coming up in parliament (Knesset) today, was filed because of an interview Eshkol granted to Newsweek magazine.

In it he was quoted as saying Israel would be "flexible" on returning territory it captured in the war if such a move would insure a just peace.

Arab unrest flared again Monday in occupied towns along the Jordan River's west bank and threatened more trouble for Eshkol's regime. Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan hinted that Israel may get tough with future demonstrators. Arab youths hurled rocks at Israeli police.

In Cairo, high Egyptian and Jordanian officials were to confer on Big Four talks on a Middle East settlement. Jordanian Premier Bahjat Talhouni and his foreign minister were arriving in the Egyptian capital with a personal message from Jordan's King Hussein for Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

In another development, El Fatah guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat said in Cairo his forces would fight Israel even if a peace settlement for the Middle East is reached.

In Jerusalem, the no-confidence motion was filed against Eshkol's National Unity government by the rightwing Gahal Bloc, which opposes giving up any territory won in the six-day war 20 months ago.

Newsweek quoted Eshkol as saying that Israel had no interest in retaining the populated areas on the west bank of the Jordan River where the Israeli troops are now encountering Arab protests. The area was taken from Jordan in 1967.

Eshkol reportedly told the magazine his country is "flexible" on the future of all occupied lands except Jerusalem and the strategic Golan Heights, neither of which Israel will let go.

Strike, Strike, Strike Still the College Theme

By United Press International
Two thousand to 3,000 students picketed Monday in an attempt to get all of the University of Wisconsin's 33,000 students to "strike, strike, close it down."

Students in the 13th day of occupying the Administration Building of the University of Chicago planned today to attempt to extend their demonstration to the Social Sciences Building.

At the University of California's Berkeley Campus Monday, picketing militants were moved from the entrances of the campus by wedges of California Highway Patrolmen and Alameda County sheriff's deputies. Three persons were arrested. About 250 students held a brief, unruly demonstration outside the Michigan State University auditorium while President John A. Hannah was inside, condemning disruptive influences on campus. Two students were arrested and three small windows were broken by rocks.

Steelmen Vote For President

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Members of the United Steelworkers Union vote for a president today in an election that could affect the entire labor movement.

The steelworkers cast their ballots at mill gates and union halls in 3,700 locals throughout the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico.

They choose between the union's current president, I.W. Abel, 60, a soft-spoken former mill worker, and Emil Narick, 52, a crewcut union lawyer and former football player who hopes to follow Abel in becoming the second man in union history to unseat an incumbent.

If Narick should win, he has promised to "re-examine and re-evaluate" the union's tie with the AFL-CIO. Since Walter Reuther pulled his United Auto Workers from the AFL-CIO, the 1.2 million member Steelworkers union has been the largest federation, and Abel is considered the No. 2 man behind George Meany.

There have been repeated reports that Narick who calls himself the underdog, is a Reuther man. Throughout his campaign, Narick has praised Reuther's leadership, contending the auto-workers has shown superior bargaining power to the steelworkers.

If Narick were to throw the support of the steelworkers to Reuther, Meany's AFL-CIO could face a challenge from a powerful alliance.

Narick has also claimed that Abel, if re-elected, will resign from and take over control of the AFL-CIO when the 74-year-old Meany retires.

At the University of Wisconsin Monday, black and white students engaged in peaceful picketing in sympathy with demands of black students, who demand recruiting more black students and a black curriculum. Riot-equipped police watched, but there were no incidents. Monday night, about 20 backers of the strike began a sit-in in the Sociology Department offices.

Opposition Softens to a Lottery Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There are indications Congress may answer demands for a change in the draft law by considering a lottery. But it appeared the change might be more one of form than substance.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee said he has softened his previous opposition to a lottery and will hold hearings this spring on the Selective Service Act.

The lottery idea is part of a growing public clamor for changes in the draft laws. But backers of the lottery proposal believe that mandatory four-year college deferments should be dropped to make the lottery effective. Rivers and his colleagues on the committee believe deferments and other parts of the law should be left unchanged.

President Nixon has not taken a stand on the lottery idea but

Residents Face Difficulties With Water

RHINEBECK
The Rhinebeck Village water supply experienced difficulties today for the second time in recent weeks.

Residents were without water this morning while repairs were made to the water line in the vicinity of Montgomery Street and the Old Post Road.

Village officials also asked residents to shovel snow away from fire hydrants.

Rail Car Pierced

Workmen prepare to remove section of steel pipe which pierced a double-deck commuter car on a speeding Southern Pacific train in San Bruno, California Monday. At least three passengers were killed and more than a score were injured. The pipe, eight inches in diameter, smashed into the side of the car as it was being removed from the railroad right-of-way by construction cranes. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Coast Slick Breaking Up

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Most of the oil slick off the California coast has broken up but it will be a long time before the bird crisis is over.

Cormorants, ducks, gulls, sandpipers and loons still are dying from oil poisoning despite volunteer and professional efforts to save them.

Three bird-rescue stations reported Monday 1,053 birds brought in since a well on the ocean floor started leaking two weeks ago. Of this number, 197 have died.

Uncounted hundreds more have been found dead on the beaches, their feathers blackened with crude oil, their eyes inflamed, their intestines burned with a purgative far more toxic than castor oil.

The runaway well spewed more than 200,000 gallons of oil into Santa Barbara Channel and along about 30 miles of Pacific Ocean beaches before it was plugged Saturday. The slick once extended over 800 square miles.

The main body of the slick was broken up by winds, waves and chemical dispersants, but great patches also leaked into the sandy beaches, said Paul De Falco, regional director of the U.S. Air and Water Pollution Control Administration.

"The oil still at sea should come ashore in the next week or so," De Falco said.

Round-the-clock efforts continued to suck up the remaining oil with pump boats or to soak it up with tons of straw or similar materials.

Until the ocean and beaches can be cleared of this slime—a task that may take weeks—the slicks remain a trap for wide-winged birds that dive for fish or the long-legged ones that scour the surf for crabs and clams.

The rescue stations are bird laundries where the feathered unfortunates are washed in oil-dissolving agents, hand-dried and kept in warm pens.

One problem: Laundered birds can't be put back in the sea right away, says a Fish and Game man, because "they'd sink like a rock. They have no natural oil on their feathers." Experts aren't sure how long it will take this oil to return, but think it might be months until the next moult.

At Carpinteria, Allen Percy, an automotive engineer for the oil firm, has found it takes two men about 20 minutes to clean a small seabird such as a grebe.

Says coworker J. G. Huffman, normally an electrical engineer: "I'm beginning to smell like a fish and think like a bird."

Donald M. Robinson, superintendent of the Channel Islands National Monument offshore, said that unless winds change rare seals on the channel islands are expected to escape harm. He said the only present danger to sea life was to abalone, lobsters, sea urchins and undersea plant life in tide pools hit by oil. The seals apparently realized the danger, he said, "and didn't go near the oily water."

All Racism Rejected

Celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, black and white leaders joined in declaring war now on black racism, as they had on white racism for the last 20 years. They met in Washington.

They hailed Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for threatening to take Negro separatists to court, and assured him he could count on them for help.

Militants who had been part of the conference in the past did not attend. None of the explosive rhetoric heard in the slums was heard here. Instead, the old words, "love" and "equal opportunity" and "integration" were used repeatedly.

One got the impression that black power had become almost a dirty word among those most concerned about civil rights. A least the use of black power by militants was rejected.

Hubert H. Humphrey, who was lauded for his 20 years of efforts on behalf of civil rights, reassured the 1,200 conferees that the man who had defeated him in the recent election, "The man who is in the President's office now is no racist."

Racism, either white or black, serves no race. Equal opportunity is something else. Civil rights fighters now have the laws they need to secure equal opportunity. They should make that their rallying cry now. They are helping to make racism unpopular in this country, wherever it occurs.

Vanishing Surpluses

Just to set the record straight, Senator John J. Williams, Delaware Republican who has become the watchdog of the Treasury, warned the Senate that even if former President Lyndon B. Johnson's budgets for this fiscal year and next were adopted without change, his surpluses would turn into deficits. Williams' argument was that, in both cases, Johnson had included Social Security and other trust funds to make up his surpluses, whereas trust funds cannot be used to shore up general Government expenses.

In fiscal 1969, Williams figures the Government will have to borrow $6.9 billion if all the budget figures are accurate, instead of having a $2.4 billion surplus as Johnson had estimated. And in fiscal 1970, the deficit will be $10 billion, according to Williams, instead of the $3.4 billion surplus Johnson had projected. This even if Congress decrees the increases in taxes and postal rates requested by Johnson.

It is just as well that Williams has made his calculation this early in the Nixon Administration. All departments have already been requested to recommend cuts in the budgets to make room for new initiatives. The spectre of deficits should speed this economy wave and, hopefully, cut even deeper into the budget to avoid these projected deficits.

Cigarette smokers may be asked to help pay for research to find a nonhazardous cigarette. Retired Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Wilbur J. Cohen urged such a tax in his valedictory. The idea is similar to gasoline taxes that pay for more highways, with the users paying the bill.

"Sometimes I think we should not only de-Americanize the war—we should de-South-Vietnamize the Peace Talks!"

"Let's Find More Comfortable Seats and Talk This Over!"

Henry J. Taylor Says Federal Land-Hoarding Abuses

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel was lambasted for his views, but the fact remains that the federal octopus holds surplus lands and gobbles even more with its bureaucratic tentacles on a scale that totally defies the public interest.

Abuses like this can feed and grow on their own momentum. And the job-protecting bureaucrats can stall all protests by their own red tape. Once again, the taxpayer's money is the forgotten man. The Federal octopus hates to be reminded that Alaska remains a full 99 per cent Federally owned, or that all but 15 per cent of Arizona is Federally owned, or that the government owns 80 per cent of Idaho, and about 80 per cent of New Mexico. The Defense Department alone controls 4.3 million acres in California. Mum's the word.

Much is needed across the country, especially for conservation or recreation and even to buy more for these purposes under some 1964 legislation. But again and again the octopus hangs on to sites and whole areas declared surplus or obsolete. The sales are negligible compared to the potential recovery and this potential is nearly incredible.

Washington's overspending has increased taxes and even put a super-tax on us taxpayer peasants. Yet the bureaucratic tentacles deprive us of this multimillion-dollar bonanza. Then the octopus takes a second swipe at us.

Consider Colorado. The Federally withheld property amounts to 46.9 per cent. This alone is far larger than the combined tax-exempt property owned by the state, municipalities, public schools and higher-education institutions, religious and charitable organizations.

As a result, more than 42 per cent of the entire area of the state is tax-exempt by reason of Federal withholding. Colorado property owners paid $284 million in taxes in 1966. Last year they paid more than 9 per cent more, or $334 million. They paid nearly $6 million every week; about $1 million a week more than in 1966.

On top of this, when Mr. Hickel said Washington is continuing to remove land from the tax rolls at an alarming rate, I find he made the understatement of the year. In Colorado alone the records show that 19 Federal agencies' purchases in fee during the five-year period from 1964 through last December 31 totalled 3.6 million acres. Year in, year out, the average exceeded 700,000 acres bought each year. The payment usually runs around $475 an acre. In the same period Washington acquired an interest in 2.1 million acres more.

Though some Federal agencies make payments in lieu of taxes, not all do. The National Education Association made a study of 11 Western public land states. The best it could come up with was that Federal payments totalled only about 31 per cent of the estimated taxes. The bureaucrats just pile the rest onto the peasants.

Outraged taxpayers across the country have protested the Federal octopus's land-hoarding and land-grabbing. So have state legislatures and municipalities — by officially enacted protests. Numerous Congressional acts (including the Taylor Grazing Act) specifically require surplus land disposals. The American Bar Association has the issue again and again, confirming that Federal lands should be disposed of in fee simple after they have served the purpose of the purchase. The result: nothing.

Even Article 1, Sec. 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution specifically limits the right of the Federal government to own land except for certain purposes, which Washington is obviously violating. The result of protests on these grounds? Nothing.

Moreover, with the usual extremism riding hard in the saddle, former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall has handed Mr. Hickel a fine little package of buying projects whose real cost would be between $2.7 billion and $3.7 billion more in the next nine years than the Congress authorized.

On December 6 this column pointed out that when Congress enacted the Commission on the Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government, the commission enlisted a wide spectrum of the nation's most distinguished land experts and other specialists. Their investigation of Federal land-hoarding, undertaken as a public service, took two years. They tabulated the potential recovery of billions on billions of dollars. Conservative is one thing, blessings be, but land-hoarding is quite another.

Nixon: Cool and Decisive Or Crumbly in the Crisis?

BY BRUCE BLOSSAT.

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

President Nixon's first weeks in office have led some of his confirmed critics among the veteran Nixon-watchers to scorn his publicized sense of orderliness as unsuitable to the untidy, unpredictable world in which he moves.

Specifically, they have been amused at his scheduling of long Saturday sessions of the National Security Council to discuss Vietnam and the Middle East.

They suggest that if a crisis had developed over these areas before the NSC meetings, Nixon would have had to ask the disputants to postpone their conflict.

It is all in good fun, of course, and is essentially foolish, since the watchers in question understand fully that the President reads or hears of the daily cables from abroad and would surely convene his top foreign affairs specialists quickly to deal with trouble.

The real point of mentioning this fun-making is that it is reflective of attitudes long held toward Nixon, not only by close observers but by a fairly wide range of Americans, to the effect that he does well enough when things are neat and orderly but crumbles in a crunch.

This is not the place to review the supposed supporting evidence for these attitudes. It is a moment to suggest that the evidence may at least be conflicting, and to raise the prospect that those who expect Richard Nixon to melt in the heat of his first crisis may be surprised—and in some cases even-disappointed.

Some men in the President's circle are saying that he views orderliness in government, with seeming stress on the externals of logical, symmetrical structure, as no more than a tool for performance.

If these aides are to be believed, those in the White House entourage who survive and achieve some measure of power will do so by performing to Nixon's satisfaction — especially under pressure — and not by erecting and fortifying some neat little sub-empire.

By the same token, it is suggested, he demands no less of himself and actually invites the hard test of his skills. Far from being most comforted by the orderly routine his critics say he loves, aides will argue, he is often bored by it. Says one:

"He feeds on his adrenalin." This contrasting portrait of Nixon in a crunch is of a man who, at least within the tight circle of his most trusted associates, exhibits a quick, strong sense of command.

He is said to begin by making sure he grasps the real nature and ramifications of the critical matter under discussion. Then he plunges with obvious relish into a round of questioning.

To his inquiries he wants only brief, judgemental responses, supported by a sentence or two. The respondent who launches his own windy discussion of alternatives will find himself cut off.

The man who starts over ground already familiar to the President may not get to finish his sentence.

Though this is bound to be less true in the swiftly evolving urban field where he is new than in the foreign affairs and political realms where he is admittedly an old hand, the President generally conveys to his working intimates the notion that he brings to the crisis table so much authoritative background that time need not be wasted on laying out fundamentals.

The crucial moments are spent, they say, at the real core of the decision-making process. And he alone decides.

Is this offsetting picture of Nixon the more accurate one? There is no need to call upon history to prove or disprove. The White House always a cauldron of problems today, will sooner or later supply the President with the unequalled test he, his friends and his adversaries are watching for.

Drew Pearson Says Secret Reports Question Worth Of Billion-Dollar ABM System

DRUG INDUSTRY BACKS DOWN

Ever since 1960, Drew Pearson has been writing columns regarding the high price of medicinal drugs. Among other things, he published various stories concerning the drug lobby, and the conspiracy by the big drug companies to keep drug prices high. He revealed the industry's battle to protect its fabulous profits on highly advertised brand-name drugs when identical drugs can be had at shockingly lower prices under their generic names.

On Feb. 6, four of the big drug companies offered to settle antitrust cases against them for $120 million.

WASHINGTON — Unmentioned in all the clamor over the anti-ballistic missile system is the danger, admittedly remote, that a missile installation could accidentally blow up and demolish a large area of the city it is supposed to protect.

Already 14 sites have been selected and others are sought in the suburbs around such cities as Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and 20 others.

Should a missile installation ever blow up, according to Pentagon experts, it would cause total destruction for a radius of at least five miles and would spread radioactive fallout for hundreds of miles.

The same experts have assured this column, of course, that the chance of an accidental explosion is extremely small. It is a chance, however, that some cities may not want to take.

Meanwhile, this column has been warning since 1966, even before the ABM system was approved, that it looked like a multi-billion-dollar boondoggle. It was sought by the corporate carnivores who devour defense dollars and by the brass hats who seem willing to lavish staggering amounts on their pet theories and hunches.

The secret technical reports raise grave doubts whether the ABM system will ever work. The scientific evidence indicates, for example, that the system would break down under a massive missile bombardment. Yet military strategists agree that an enemy would have to mount a saturation attack upon our country in order to destroy our ability to retaliate.

The Spartan and Spring missiles that are supposed to knock down enemy warheads will be nuclear-tipped. Yet tests indicate that nuclear explosions could foul up the electronic gear. The first interception of an incoming warhead would produce a nuclear explosion that could disrupt the radar guiding the other anti-missile missiles. A number of explosions could throw entire ABM system out of whack.

For that matter, the sophisticated electronic gadgetry developed for the ABM system has been tested only under clinical conditions. Privately, some scientists doubt that all the vital electronic components will function under the stress of a nuclear attack. Example: the complex computer, which will be the ABM brain, depends upon water cooling, which some experts don't consider dependable in an emergency.

No one can be sure whether the ABM system will work, of course, until the country actually is hit by a hailstorm of nuclear missiles. If the system fails, it will be too late to collect rebates from the contractors.

Congress has authorized only a "thin" or partial ABM defense that is supposed to cost $5 billion to $6 billion. Some experts predict this will soar to $10 billion. Others believe it will be merely the down payment on a full $50 billion system.

Even the $5 billion cost, which experts consider money down the drain, is more than Americans spend in a year on all police, prisons and prosecution. For the same price, we could double our attack upon crime in the streets, or alleviate the conditions that cause crime. For instance, $5 billion would build more than 25,000 schools or subsidize housing for 50 million low-income families. Note: The fine art of gaining contracts depends as much on political influence as professional competence. Bell Telephone Laboratories, the prime contractor, has forbidden overt lobbying for the ABM system. But the company's man on Capitol Hill, Ed Zillman, is available to answer inquiries.

The subcontractors have been more active in button-holing generals and Congressmen. Among the busiest have been Martin Marietta, McDonnell Douglas, General Electric, Sperry Rand and Raytheon. Most of these companies employ lobbyists with excellent pipelines into the Pentagon and close contacts on Capitol Hill.

The Nixon administration is now holding up construction work on the ABM system pending a thorough review. It's worth recalling that in 1967 Richard Nixon sharply criticized then-President Johnson for not rushing ahead with the ABM system. It will be interesting to see whether Nixon will change his mind.

What Price Justice? At long last, after 24 years of erroneous incarceration in New York prisons, it looks as if Isidore Zimmerman might get justice.

Charles D. Henderson has introduced a bill in the New York Legislature to permit Zimmerman to bring action against New York State to recover damages for his long, illegal imprisonment.

Zimmerman was sentenced for the alleged murder of a New York policeman back in Tom Dewey's crime-busting day. After sweating it out on death row, he narrowly escaped the electric chair and finally was reprieved by Gov. Herbert Lehman. The State of New York apologized but offered no other amends.

Zimmerman, now an old man, has had difficulty getting employment. However, kindly Assemblyman Henderson has come to his rescue by proposing restitution to make up, in small measure, for the state's injustice to Zimmerman.

It Was Pueblo Chief's Duty To Safeguard Secret Data

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Stripped of emotion and side issues, let us look at what we are dealing with in the capture of the Pueblo.

Certain code equipment and documents aboard the ship were Top Secret.

Top Secret is, by regulation, applied only to information or material which in the hands of an enemy could result in "exceptionally grave damage to the nation."

This reporter has been present when officers who carried no Top Secret material except in their memories were not allowed in battle areas in Vietnam because they might be captured and this material somehow extracted from them.

Crypto Top Secret material is considered even more sensitive. The breaking of the Japanese code before Midway made it possible for the United States to win that battle and turn the course of the war.

Compromised U.S. codes were of course, altered after the Pueblo was lost. But the damaged equipment and documents captured presumably will enable the Russians and North Koreans to duplicate some of the equipment, give them a better knowledge of U.S. cryptographic techniques, making it easier for Moscow to break U.S. codes in the future.

A better knowledge of U.S. codes could result in more Americans dying in South Vietnam.

At a crucial point in the future such enemy knowledge of U.S. codes could, by disclosing crucial weak points in U.S. defenses encourage enemy aggression and lead to many American deaths.

So, in talking of the Pueblo, we are not talking only of the lives of Commander Bucher and his crew, important as every one of those lives is. We are also talking of the lives of many other men and women.

The safeguarding of Top Secret material is therefore a grave responsibility. It is so grave, in fact, that officers, no matter how junior, have certain exceptional prerogatives with regard to accepting responsibility for a certain highly sensitive intelligence material or equipment.

An officer, whether he be an ensign, lieutenant, commander or colonel, even when ordered on a mission by a general or admiral, can refuse a mission if he is convinced that he does not have reasonable means to safeguard that material. In fact, he has the duty to refuse or find some way to provide security.

But he had better be right. Security regulations in the Army, Navy and Air Force put the responsibility for safeguarding classified information squarely in the hands of the officer on the spot. Since it is his responsibility, he makes the final decision. As the local commander, he has that responsibility and authority even when he has an intelligence or security detachment aboard.

The guarding of Top Secret information in the Pentagon is not difficult. Under field conditions, as aboard a ship sailing without escort in waters close to enemy or unfriendly territory, it becomes very difficult indeed. Under such field conditions, this reporter knows that local commanding officers (junior and senior) resort to some highly unorthodox methods for making certain that Top Secret and other classified material will not fall into enemy hands.

They "moonlight - requisition" explosives, weapons, chemicals and other destructive devices. They train technicians with little military experience in the firing of hand weapons. They develop emergency plans, run drills, attempt to foresee every possible loophole in their plans. They may make certain that much of their classified paper is easily destroyed tissue.

Higher authorities in all services have a common trait. They regularly send an officer to the field with more classified documents than he can possibly use in his work or destroy in an emergency. It is up to the officer concerned to turn back or destroy all excess sensitive materials — so that he can manage what he does carry.

It has been usual in the Army, Navy and Air Force in World War II, Korea and Vietnam, for higher authorities to give over the responsibility for classified materials in the field to junior officers and not provide adequate security for the preservation of that material.

It is then up to the officer in the field to use his ingenuity in advance of an emergency or refuse his mission under these circumstances.

This does not relieve the higher command from its responsibility; neither does it excuse the officer on the spot from his.

Editor, The Freeman
The untimely death of the young New Paltz soldier, P.F.C. Henry Schulte, son of Gerhard and Helen Connolly Schulte, of the Mountain Rest Road is a tragic event that has shocked and saddened the entire community.

We join with the many people in expressing our heartfelt condolence and are aware of the pitiful inadequacy of mere words in moments like this.

"HANK'S" leaving us at such an early age of twenty, is once again a poignant reminder, of the frailty and uncertainty of our mortal existence!

Anybody who was fortunate enough to be "HANK" SCHULTE'S friend, was enriched for life. He was a wonderful son; brother; grandson; nephew and cousin. Their lives revolved around "HANK" as planets around the sun! For "HANK" cast enough light and affection in his short space of time to warm all of his clan and then some, for many years to come. Yes! for eternity!

It is truly difficult to realize that the adorable, little blonde boy, who was handsome enough to be a fashion model and who used to stop in my home and proudly display his home-work book from St. Joseph's Parochial School, New Paltz is no longer in our midst! For we, like so many others were looking forward to his returning home and now God has taken "HANK" to his Heavenly home.

Nixon—Widespread Backing

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 8—President Richard Nixon won the White House by a razor-thin margin in November, but he starts his Administration with the widespread support of his fellow Americans.

A large number of voters interviewed understandably withheld judgment at this early juncture. But those with opinions say they approve of President Nixon's performance by a 12-to-1 ratio.

Even voters who chose Hubert Humphrey or George Wallace on November 5 generally react favorably to the way Nixon has handled his job to date.

'Relaxed Atmosphere'

A 41-year old Terre Haute, Ind., storeowner said: "I'm a Democrat, but I'm impressed with Nixon so far. He's well-organized and I like the relaxed atmosphere around him."

A 37-year old housewife said hopefully: "I think we'll have a more stable existence for a while."

Like Nixon Cabinet Choices

Part of the reason for the public's initial approval of President Nixon is their generally favorable reaction to his Cabinet selections.

A total of three out of four persons interviewed in the latest survey, conducted Jan. 23-29, would give the Nixon Cabinet appointments either a "good" or "fair" rating. Only 5 per cent say "poor."

Voters who backed Humphrey or Wallace last November are more inclined to say "fair" than are Nixon voters, but few nevertheless use the term "poor."

First Impressions

To determine the public's initial response to the new Chief Executive, Gallup Poll interviewers asked a national sample of adults this question:

Just your first impression, do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?

Here are the national findings:

Nixon's Performance?
 Approve 59
 Disapprove 5
 No opinion 36
 This question was asked to determine attitudes toward the Nixon Cabinet:

On the whole, do you think Nixon's Cabinet appointments have been good, fair, or poor?

Nixon's Cabinet Appointments?

Middle-of-the-Road Preferred for Nixon

If President Nixon wishes to appeal to the dominant mood of the public at this time, he will pursue a middle-of-the-road course.

To see which political route the voters would like to see President Nixon take, the Gallup Poll had its interviewers ask this question:

Which of these three policies would you like to have President Nixon follow?

Each person was then handed a card containing these alternatives:

A. Go more to the right — by following more of the views of business and conservative groups?
 B. Go more to the left — by following more of the views of labor and other liberal groups?
 C. Follow a policy halfway between the two?

Policy Like to Have

 Keep to middle 43
 No opinion 12

The middle-of-the-road policy is mentioned most frequently among backers of all three candidates in the November election.

As might be expected, however, partisan differences do show up in the replies to this question. Persons who voted for Nixon would prefer "right" over "left" by a 4-to-1 ratio, while Humphrey voters prefer "left" by the same ratio. Those who voted for Wallace favor "right" by a 3-to-2 ratio.

Guess Nixon Will Go to 'Right'

The public's guess is slightly on the side that the President is more likely to head down the right side of the political road—following the view of business and conservative groups—than he is to stick to the center of it.

This was the question: Which of these three policies (same as in previous question) do you think President Nixon WILL follow?

 Americanism vs. Communism

The major threat to destroy the American way of life is communism. The communists and their allies have infiltrated every phase of American Society today. Government investigations have shown that communists have infiltrated our schools, our colleges and even the Government itself.

The characteristic which distinguishes the American way of life from the communistic way is the recognition of the truth that the inherent and fundamental rights of men are derived from God and not from governments, dictators or majorities. These inalienable rights are: Freedom of Worship; Freedom of Speech and Press; Freedom of Assembly; Freedom of Work in such occupations as the experience, training and qualifications of man may enable him to secure and hold; the right to pursue his happiness so long as he does not harm others in the pursuit of this happiness. It was upon these basic principles, that the whole structure of our form of government was established by our forefathers.

Here are seven things that you can do to fight Communism and preserve America:

1. Alert yourself—learn the true nature and tactics of communism.
2. Make civic programs for social improvement your business.
3. Exercise your right to vote; elect representatives of integrity.
4. Respect human dignity. Communism and individual rights cannot coexist.
5. Inform yourself; know your country—its history, traditions, and heritage.
6. Combat public apathy toward communism—indifference can be fatal when national survival is at stake.
7. Attack bigotry and prejudice wherever they appear; justice for all is the bulwark of democracy.

Patriotism is everybody's job!

Editor, The Freeman:

On April 23, 1968, the Freeman published a letter from the undersigned as a rebuttal to a letter by Dorothy Galitsky. Apparently my letter didn't get through to her as I see she is still as per her letter in the Feb. 3 Freeman, making cracks about Socialism of which she knows nothing about.

The mere fact that she mentions Norman Thomas and the Socialist Party attests to her ignorance.

The late Norman Thomas boasted that his party supplied Franklin D. Roosevelt with planks that saved capitalism. Here is a party pretending to be "Socialist" openly admitting that its program was used to save the system the program was supposedly designed to destroy!

It is fortunate that the so-called Socialist Party is virtually extinct as essentially it was a party of reformers, not real Socialists.

It is the Socialist Labor Party that stands for Socialism because it is a revolutionary party whose goal is the abolition of capitalism and the founding of the Socialist Industrial Republic.

Sincerely yours,

Moderates Are Best Hope To Heal Wounds

By RAY CROMLEY

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—

Though Russian influence has increased heavily in the Middle East in the past two decades, strong forces would aid U. S. attempts to help the moderates build democratic political-economic institutions reflecting the will of the peoples.

The growth of such democratic institutions and the resulting county-to-county political strengths and national pride would decrease markedly the chances of war.

These changes, of course, could only be accomplished at the request of and along lines suggested by the moderate leaders of the Middle East world. To date, no forum has been set up to listen to these leaders.

It is essential that neither the United States nor any other outside country attempt to dictate the programs or objectives.

What is needed is an inter-country group, as in the Marshall Plan for Europe, which would make plans for the region as a whole, encompassing all nationalities and religions in the area.

Consider these assets:

1—Despite the publicity given firebrands, most countries in the Middle East are moderate internationally—Iran, Morocco, Tunisia, Lebanon, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Turkey and Libya.

2—The moderate countries have been gaining in prestige and influence. Iran has been making giant strides toward up-gradings opportunities for the underprivileged. Students in Saudi Arabia have jumped from 2,300 in 1939 to 400,000 today. Literacy in Kuwait has risen 50 per cent.

Saudi Arabia has provided $120 million a year to Egypt and Jordan since the war in Israel. Kuwait has given $132 million a year. These are strong and compelling arguments for Egyptian and Jordanian moderation.

3—There are strong forces for moderation even within the United Arab Republic. Though the Egyptian government has often spoken in belligerent terms, and though Nasser, himself, is noted for his Soviet leanings, Cairo's recent acts—and some of its proposals—seem almost conciliatory.

As one American study notes: "In spite of the rupture of diplomatic relations with the United States, President Nasser has allowed the American University at Cairo to continue. The United Arab Republic has also continued to co-operate fully with American oil companies operating in Egypt. There is an apparent desire on his part not to burn his bridges with Washington."

4—The Soviet desire for adventurism in the Middle East is restrained somewhat by the heavy cost of sustaining Castro in Cuba, supporting Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi, aiding the Arab countries defeated in the war with Israel and by the increasing cost of competing with the growing activity of Red Chinese agents in the area, whose programs sometimes run at cross-purposes with Soviet aims.

The more unsettled the Middle East, the more opportunistic facilities are still preferred by large numbers of Arab intelligentsia."

6—By and large, all that U.S. interests require in the region are the same principals of equality, safety and reciprocity that Middle East countries expect in the United States.

The United States has little need of bases in the Middle East. U. S. oil companies have shown they can work with a wide variety of arrangements, from nationalization in Iran to concessions in Saudi Arabia. The Suez canal is not vital to U. S. aims in the area which, in fact, parallel the basic aims of the great majority of the peoples in the Middle East.

The Soviet Union also suffers from being a giant next-door neighbor.

5—Genuine nationalism in the Middle East is more in line with U. S. objectives than Soviet communism. Communism, in fact, has been barred by major Middle Eastern countries, including Iraq and Egypt.

A recent private study of the Middle East concluded that "American economic patterns, political institutions and educational facilities are still preferred by large numbers of Arab intelligentsia."

Mexico No Asylum For U.S. Fugitives

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico may appear to some Americans as a lenient haven for U.S. draft dodgers, Army deserters, and fun-seeking hippies looking for drugs and marijuana.

But officials say Mexico is not an asylum. While the government does not emphasize police action against fugitive aliens, the Mexican agents do maintain a constant vigilance. Deportations are informally sudden.

Frequently a fugitive American who has violated Mexican laws and hospitality is escorted to a border point where U.S. authorities happen to nab him.

The Mexican officials emphasize their aim is to rid Mexico of persons who overstay six-month tourist visas, who try to find employment in violation of the visa or who violate Mexican laws in other ways.

The current estimate on U.S. citizen military deserters in Mexico trying to escape capture is about 20.

The figure has varied little in recent years, but the faces change as deserters run out of money and surrender or are picked up by Mexican police as illegal aliens.

Visitors on a tourist card are forbidden to work in Mexico," says one official. "If a fugitive from another country has independent income he can obviously live here unless he violates Mexican law by overstaying his visa or engaging in illegal activities."

Thousands of Americans have been eased out of Mexico—under arrest until arrival at the border—for involvement in drugs and marijuana cases.

Mexican police are especially watchful against Americans dressed in Bohemian fashion.

One type of fugitive from the United States, however, apparently has found sanctuary in Mexico: Mexicans drafted into the U.S. military during visits to that country but who later deserted and returned to Mexico.

Officials estimate more than 25 Mexican nationals currently are living in their native country after deserting the U.S. military. Since they are Mexican citizens it is unlikely they will ever be returned to the United States for prosecution.

Others who have found this sanctuary are U.S. citizens born to Mexican national parents in the United States. By Mexican law they too are citizens here despite the additional U.S. citizenship.

NAACP Adds 2 Life Members

KINGSTON — The NAACP of Ulster County met Monday night and added two more life members to its rolls, bringing total membership to more than one hundred.

New life members are the YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County and Herbert Schultz of Kingston Coal and Oil Company.

The YMCA joined as an organization, according to Robert Stubbs, director, and will endeavor to have a member of the board of directors present at each meeting of the NAACP which are held at the New Central Baptist Church on the Strand.

The organization now has three life members, the first being Roy Zwickel, owner of the Howard Johnson's Motel on Route 28.

Plans were also made to invite the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, chairman of the Kingston Human Relations Commission, to the next meeting to discuss the commission's plans for the future.

The organization will meet March 10 at 7:30 p. m. in the New Central Baptist Church.

Cousin Escorts Body of Senior, Viet Victim

KINGSTON

The body of Army PFC John J. Senior, who was killed in Vietnam Feb. 2, was escorted home by his cousin, Army Capt. Andrew J. Dykes, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dykes of 143 Prospect Street.

Captain Dykes was serving with the 86th Engineer Battalion in Vietnam at the time of his cousin's death.

The captain's brother, Navy Lt. Commander Robert A. Dykes, 31, stationed at Quonset Point, R.I., will also attend the funeral, from the Frank H. Simpson Funeral Home, 411 Albany Avenue, Thursday at 9 a.m.

Lt. Commander Dykes was recently promoted to his present rank while serving aboard the USS Essex. He enlisted in the Navy in 1959. Both he and his brother are career officers.

Senior was a 1967 graduate of Kingston High School, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Senior of RD 1, Box 163 Old Flatbush Road.

A high Mass of requiem will be celebrated at St. Catherine Labourer Church, Thursday, with burial in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Friends may call tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. and Wednesday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

William Moore Dies, Dutchess Jurors Head

TIVOLI — William S. Moore, Dutchess County Commissioner of Jurors, who died in New York City early Monday, will be buried in his native Tivoli.

Active in county politics for more than 20 years, the former supervisor, county legislator and Republican committeeman, died of cerebral hemorrhage at the Hotel Roosevelt where he was staying while attending the New York State Association of Towns meeting with a group of Dutchess County delegates.

Arrangements were being made today by the American Red Cross to fly his son, S4/c Terry W. Moore home from Ethiopia where he is stationed. A resident of Tivoli, all his life, Moore graduated from Tivoli High School and served three and one-half years in the Army in the China-Burma-India Theatre during World War II.

He was the owner of Moore's Confectionary Store in the Village of Tivoli. A GOP committeeman for 17 years, he served as town tax collector in Red Hook for 15 years and was its supervisor for six years, five of which were spent as majority leader of the county board.

Elected to the Board of Representatives in 1968, representing District 5 which includes Rhinebeck and Red Hook, he resigned when he later accepted the post of Commissioner of Jurors.

Moore was a member of St. Paul's and Trinity Episcopal Church, the American Legion, VFW and was a 20-year member of Elks.

Mr. Moore was director of the First National Bank of Red Hook and a member of the Red Hook Businessmen's Association and Poughkeepsie Elks Lodge No. 275.

Surviving in addition to his son is his mother, Mrs. Frank W. Moore; his wife Ardith; a daughter, Mrs. William Orr of Watertown; two sisters, Mrs. Claude (Katherine) Pillon and Mrs. Donald (Violet) Schaffer.

Ties Problems To U.S. Policy

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The domestic problems of the United States, including student unrest, are tied closely to this nation's foreign policy, says the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Harlan Cleveland said Monday the rest of the world was keenly interested in how the U.S. handles such problems as poverty and racial strife. And he told students at the State University at Buffalo that American youth, especially students, would be the medium to carry the messages of results abroad.

Cleveland, speaking at an International Week forum, said also the desire of American, especially young Americans, for "no more Vietnams" should be carried out by "sharing with as many partners as possible the responsibility for international peace keeping."

He called for increased reliance on multilateral commitments through the United Nations and defense pacts such as NATO as "a cure for the feeling of overcommitment" engendered by the Vietnamese War.

Raymond H. Lyke
Raymond H. Lyke, 80, of 145 Hinsdale Street, Town of Ulster, died in Kingston Monday. Funeral services will be held at the A. ## Fire Destroys Finger Lakes Bowling Alley

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — A building housing a 32-lane bowling alley and a liquor store was destroyed by fire early today and the owner estimated the damage at $750,000.

Residents of the area reported seeing an explosion near the building's furnace, police said. The fire in this northern Finger Lakes community wrecked the Sun Bowl Lanes on Route 96. Twelve volunteer fire companies fought the flames.

Frank Nanna, the owner, estimated the damage. He said there was a possibility the fire was started by the furnace.

Memorial
In loving memory of Doris Barten, who passed away four years ago, February 11, 1965. In our home, she is fondly remembered. Sweet memories cling to her name. Those who loved her in life, sincerely, Still love her in death just the same.

LOVING DAD AND SISTERS
Memorial

In loving memory of my husband, Harry J. Quinn, who passed away seven years ago, February 11, 1962.

February brings sad memories. Of my loved one laid to rest. He will never be forgotten. By the one who loved him best. But what it meant to lose him No one will ever know. Days of sadness still come over me. Hidden tears so often flow. Memory keeps my loved one near me. Though he died seven years ago.

WIFE, ANNA

TODAY'S THOUGHT
By JIM GILPATRICK
For some strange reason, one of Lincoln's letters seems to have received less prominence in history than it deserves. It was a soul-stirring letter to Mrs. Lydia Bixby in Boston, a mother who lost 5 sons in the Civil War. Read it—
"I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have paid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom."

Lincoln wrote the letter PRIOR to his re-election but delayed mailing it until AFTER his election for fear the letter may have been used for propaganda or political purposes. His compassion, sentiment and sympathy was not used to buy or solicit votes for his re-election.

Charge Penn Central RR With Downgrading Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York State Public Service Commission and a railroad union both have charged the Penn Central Railroad with deliberately downgrading its passenger car service in order to obtain permission to discontinue its Buffalo, N.Y., to Harrisburg, Pa., run.

The PSC also charged that the discontinuance of those trains would further isolate the area around Olean, N.Y., and Bradford, Pa.

The contentions by the PSC and the Railroad Brotherhoods of Pennsylvania were filed Monday with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Penn Central has claimed a $1 million loss in operating the Buffalo-Harrisburg passenger trains, but the PSC said the decrease "is directly attributable to the applicant's voluntary acts in downgrading the service."

These acts, it said, included long delays, poor facilities for passengers, locked stations when trains arrive and lack of an advertising program in the areas served.

The ICC has held hearings and is now investigating a request by Penn Central to discontinue its passenger trains 574-575 between Harrisburg and Buffalo.

Both the New York commission and the brotherhood told the ICC the service is needed because alternate transportation is either inadequate or nonexistent in the Western Pennsylvania and Western New York areas.

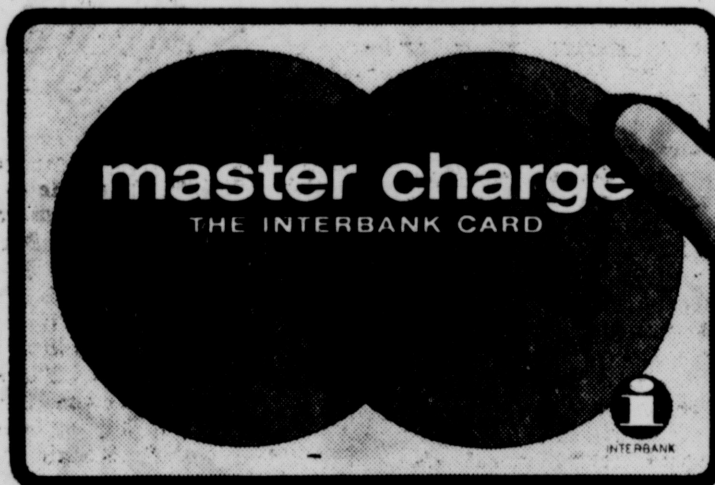

Airports in the area are frequently closed or bypassed in poor weather, they said.

In Easy Stages

GOA, India (AP) — Prohibition will be a seven year itch in India.

Computers Rolling Up The Workers' Earnings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Computers may be having silent conversations with one another about the money being credited toward their retirement.

The Social Security Administration says the earnings of more than 7.5 million workers are being recorded every three months on reels of magnetic tape.

The reels are prepared by computers owned by employers of these workers, and read by Social Security computers which record the information.

"What it amounts to is computers talking to computers," said a Social Security spokesman. "Without human intervention and the possibility of human transcribing errors."

Not only does the computer talk down on mistakes, it saves money, both for the companies involved and the government.

And use of computer-prepared tapes is increasing, said Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball. More than 535 employers are now reporting their employees' quarterly earnings this way.

The list of companies making Social Security reports on magnetic tape is six times longer than it was four years ago.

Big User

One of the big users of tapes is the military which reports this way every six months on the earnings of 3 million uniformed personnel in active service.

One thing an alert computer does is to compare names and account numbers to see if they match. If they don't, the computer rejects them.

Earnings reports not prepared by computers will have about 9 to 10 million mistakes a year in either the name or account number, with about 90 per cent of the mistakes involving one digit of the account number.

When computers do the talking about your earnings, the cash savings amounts to $12 for each 1,000 individual wage reports, or $12,000 per million employees.

Once a Social Security computer has read a tape, it is returned to the employer with a copy of the report. A microfilm copy goes into Social Security files.

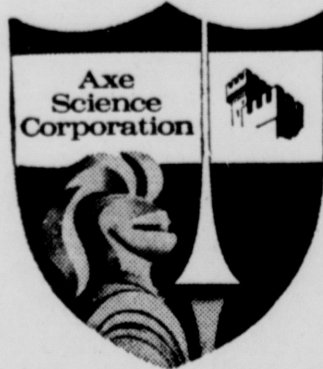

The computers are trying to root out the kind of mistakes that a Texas oilfield worker encountered about 10 years ago when he found after years of employment he had only $14 credited to his Social Security account.

His employer had been recording his wages and Social Security deductions with two digits transposed, the spokesman said, and his number became the number of a man with the same first and middle initials and last name.

Dutchess Sheriff Hurt in Crash

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP)—Sheriff Lawrence Quinlan, 53, was recovering in Vassar Hospital from a leg injury suffered when his skimobile overturned while he was delivering kerosene to a snowbound family.

Despite a gash in his leg that required 10 stitches, Quinlan righted the skimobile and delivered the kerosene Monday to the home of James Swartz, whose family of eight was marooned at home in the Dutchess Hill section of Hyde Park.

Upstate Church Destroyed in Furnace Fire

MORRISVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—A fast-spreading fire Monday night destroyed a century-old Roman Catholic church in this village 35 miles southeast of Syracuse.

The Rev. John Waters, pastor of St. Joan of Arc Church, said the fire apparently started near an oil heater at the rear of the frame structure.

No one was reported injured. Father Waters said the church was built between 1823 and 1830 and was a Congregational Church until the late 1930s.

Another Arrest Reported In Boy's Death at Theater

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Police today made a second arrest in connection with the investigation into the death of a high school pupil at a downtown theater.

Hisgen, 17, a Colonie High School pupil, died following a scuffle with Negro youths in the Palace Theater movie "Up Tight," a film dealing with racial violence.

Last week, police arrested a 13-year-old boy and charged him with juvenile delinquency in connection with the incident.

Police said Johnson was arrested on a bench warrant issued by Dist. Atty. Arnold Prosser.

Concordat Celebrates 40th, Now Facing Major Challenge

ROME (AP) — The Concordat that binds the Italian state to the Roman Catholic Church is 40 years old today and on the anniversary is facing a major challenge.

The Concordat is one of the three treaties that freed the Poles from self-imprisonment in the Vatican and ended 60 years of feuding following Italy's annexation of the Papal States. Mussolini and representatives of Pope Pius XI signed the pacts on Feb. 11, 1929.

The Concordat regulates the condition of religion and of the Church in Italy, and the Vatican has always defended it tooth and nail. Pope Paul VI described it a year ago as "an evident necessity for the true good of the Italian people and for its future." But Italy's church party, the Christian Democrats, can no longer govern without the support of the Socialists; to satisfy the Socialists the government has named a commission of jurists to draw up a thorough revision of the Concordat and has won parliamentary support for the project.

The major controversy between Church and State stems from a bill to legalize divorce in Italy. The Concordat established Roman Catholicism as Italy's official religion, and the Vatican says this implies recognition of the Church's stand that a marriage cannot be dissolved.

Hence it says that the divorce bill violates the Concordat.

The Vatican takes the same position toward proposals to legalize the general sale of contraceptives in Italy; the Church bans the use of contraceptives by Catholics, therefore contraceptives in Italy violate the Concordat.

Among the provisions of the treaty which the government commission is reported considering for revision are those which make the teaching of religion mandatory in all schools; give Rome a special status as a sacred city, provide special treatment for clergy and nuns arrested for common crimes, gives full civil validity to all religious weddings, exempts clergymen from military service and prohibits naming ex-pretates to public office.

Many Italians say these provisions are out of date and smack of the Fascist era that produced the pact. They call for revision of the Concordat in the light of modern life and the development of democracy in Italy.

Progressives in the Vatican are said to agree with this view, although the conservatives who dominate the Church's central administration oppose any revision.

All-Volunteer Army Receives Fish's Approval

WASHINGTON Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-28, N.Y.) went on record Friday, along with six other Republicans, backing President Nixon's move to create an all-volunteer army.

The bill, H.RES. 239, would, if passed, place the Congress on record as favoring a study by the Department of defense towards creation of an all-volunteer army.

"I believe the plan of an all-volunteer army as outlined by President Nixon deserves immediate consideration," Congressman Fish declared. "If the present draft system, which has been in effect for a generation, can be replaced by the creation of a volunteer system, then I for one believe it should be.

"The resolution we introduced today would solidly throw Congress behind endorsing a study to develop plans and to study the feasibility for such a change. Such a thorough study is long overdue."

Snow Causes 2-Car Mishap

NEW PALTZ Schwartz, 21, also of this community, was traveling north on win figured in the cause of a two-car collision on snow-blocked by snow drifts, when the cars collided.

New Paltz at 3:20 p. m. Monday, according to Highland state police.

James Tate, 22, R.D., this village, was driving south on the highway, and Ralph Bruce Talbot, 21, of this village, a passenger in Tate's car, received a bump on the head.

Trooper C. J. Benbenese's report noted that visibility was 10 feet due to blowing snow at the time of the mishap.

While the Scotts hold open-house, their Savings Bank account is helping to start a housing development.

Because Savings Banks are people banks they invest their depositors' money in people-projects.

Home mortgages, for example—just about the most important people-project of all.

An over $1.6 billion increase in 1968 has brought New York State Savings Bank investments in mortgages, mostly homes, to nearly $33 billion.

Last year Savings Banks committed $115 million to special low-income housing projects for New York State families. This included both rehabilitation projects and new construction—enough to house more than 20,000 people.

And Savings Banks invested over $300 million in building loans in 1968—loans to developers, smaller builders and individuals, to help get buildings started from the ground up.

How does all this translate to people? Half the families in New York State now live in houses and apartments financed by Savings Banks.

Saugerties' Beautification—Officials Cut the Red Tape

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Village officials continued to cut red tape this week to further advance their program of village beautification, specifically the ultimate demolition of all abandoned, unsightly and fire trap buildings.

Two on the List

Two of these hazardous structures, the former Broedel and Kriesel estates, now the property of the county, are next on the list as soon as negotiations can be completed with the county treasurer's office. Both have been acquired by the county on tax sales of June 15, 1965. The county took a lien on the properties when the three-year exemption period expired in June, last year.

A resolution has been filed with the County Legislature by Saugerties Legislators Paul Brazier and Richard Thornton, Democrats, and C. Freeman Lasher and Clifford Snyder, Republicans, which will give the village temporary possession of the properties for the purpose of demolition. When the properties are cleared and leveled the properties will revert back to the county. Under the resolution, this can be accomplished without the payment of back taxes and penalties.

The Broedel estate is at the corner of Partition and Montgomery Streets and the Kriesel estate consists of two properties at the corner of Partition and Clermont Streets.

The village beautification program received a king-sized boost by Saugerties Fire Department which has declared many of the derelict structures fire hazards and hazardous to the health and children playing in the vicinity.

Last year the Fire Department, through the efforts of Fire Commissioner Donald McCaig, toured the village and established a list of the derelict buildings they sought to have demolished.

Legalities Studied

The legalities for accomplishing the goals of the Fire Department were studied for some time by the village attorney and Mayor Cornelius M. Cox.

Village Clerk James Gage was authorized to write to the owners and advise them of the condition of their properties. In several cases, the property owners cooperated and agreed to have the buildings demolished.

One in particular, the former McKenney property, was given to the village by the owner, Bruce A. McKenney and the village is currently in the process of leveling the structure. This structure is at Montross and Partition Streets. McKenney gave the property conditionally and directed that it be used for a possible small park site or for recreation purposes.

The Rathburn property on Livingston Street was cleared last year when the owners agreed to the demolition.

Two other structures on the list will soon be leveled with the consent of the owner, Charles LoBianco. One is the former Wolven residence which was the site of a recent fire at Post and Partition Streets. Another of the LoBianco properties is a house situated across the street from the burned out structure.

In March, last year a Chamber of Commerce committee headed by Mrs. Cathy Lachmann re-emphasized the plight of hazardous buildings and asked the Village Board to take some form of action. At this time it was revealed that Fire Commissioner McCaig was already compiling a list of fire hazards and action was contemplated.

Focused by Freeman Story

A Freeman feature article about the situation early in March brought the matter into focus and quoted Chamber President Albert V. Conte, who called for the cooperation of everyone, residents, business men and government agencies to find a solution to the decaying problem in the village.

Since that time progress has been slow, but positive, and the red tape is gradually falling by the wayside.

Shantytown Appearance

There are still several abandoned structures giving the village a shantytown appearance.

Mentioned in the Freeman article was an empty section of a two-story frame duplex on West Bridge Street, which has a broken front porch and a crumbling stone foundation, a hazard to both the tenants in the adjoining section and to children who may be playing now and with plenty of push too close to the broken down behind it by interested officials porch and foundation. The other can restore the image of Saugerties as a progressive and friendly village.

There are also others on the fire commissioner's list and attempts are being made to locate the out-of-town owners and advise them of the condition of these structures. This attempt at clearing fire hazards and leveling unsightly buildings is not new. It was reported at a Village Board meeting of a previous administration and some form of action was requested by Walter I. Johnson, who was fire chief at that time.

A great deal of progress and study has gone into the current program by the Cox administration and the fruits of the labor are gradually becoming apparent.

The current fire chief, George Warringer has been pressing hard to keep the action alive and moving forward and he has the full backing of Fire Commissioner McCaig.

The village may wind up with a lot of little park areas throughout the village, but these will enhance the beauty of the historic village, and the site of a cleared lot may encourage a business man to establish a neighborhood. No smart business man would establish a business in a run down area, it is stressed.

The ball is definitely rolling and with plenty of push too close to the broken down behind it by interested officials porch and foundation. The other can restore the image of Saugerties as a progressive and friendly village. The village streets will become appropriate avenues for the decorative street sign flower pots, a project of the Society of Little Gardens and the crab apple trees along the main business section.

TOUR OF DERELICT BUILDINGS — Saugerties members of the County Legislature and Village of Saugerties fire officials recently toured three derelict buildings slated for demolition as soon as the county turns the properties over to the village. At the former Broedel Estate at Montgomery and Partition Streets (top) are (L-R) Legislators Richard Thornton, Clifford Snyder and C. Freeman Lasher; Fire Chief George Warringer, Legislator Paul Brazier and Fire Commissioner Donald McCaig. Below are the two buildings of the former Kriesel Estate at Clermont and Partition Streets. The store is the former Schneider Meat Market, closed for several years. (Freeman photos by Kruh and Haines).

State Medical Unit Honors Paltz Doctor

NEW YORK

Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt of New Paltz was honored Sunday by the Medical Society of the State of New York with the presentation of a President's Citation to him during the opening day of the Society's 163rd annual convention.

One of Three in State

The citation gives recognition to physicians for outstanding community and civic service over and above their work within the field of medicine. Dr. DeWitt was one of only three Society members from throughout the state to be selected to receive a President's Citation this year.

Sessions of the state convention are being held at the Americana Hotel in New York City, Feb. 9-12.

Dr. DeWitt is a past president of the Medical Society of the County of Ulster and has been president of the Ulster County Board of Health for the past eight years. He is also a past member of the Board of Trustees of The Kingston Hospital.

Among the many public service activities for which Dr. DeWitt was cited by State Society President Dr. Edward C. Hughes was his activities on behalf of Walkill Camp conducted by the Children's Aid Society of New York City on the Walkill River near New Paltz. The infirmary building at that camp was named for him in recognition of his work. The camp now is called Gardiner Park and is run for town of Gardiner children. Dr. DeWitt is a director.

Other Activities

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Ingenuity Department: At a self-service gas station customers put coins into a slot to get gasoline. There is an opening in which dollar bills can be placed.

Missoula police received a report that someone was gluing two bills together, letting the first pass into the machine to get a dollar's worth of gas, and then pulling it back out.

The gas station reported that because of that maneuver it lost $205 worth of gas in two weeks.

DR. VIRGIL B. DE WITT

He served as organizer, first president of the Board and fund drive chairman for Morille Park, New Paltz.

He is a past president of Paltz Club. He was a member for eight years, two as president, of the New Paltz Board of Education. While in service during World War II, he sponsored German prisoners of war in this country and on their return to Germany. World War II, it was pointed out, he still keeps in touch with these people, visiting them in Germany last month.

Founder of D and H Group

He was a founder of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Society and serves on its Board of Directors.

He spends considerable time driving car-less elderly people to meetings, shopping and visiting.

He is a member of the Board of Trustees of New Paltz Savings Bank, president of the Holland Society, has served as regional chairman for the Ulster County Community Chest and the YMCA Building Drive, and is active as a member of the Great Consistory of the New Paltz Reformed Church, including service as co-chairman of Religious Education Building Fund, and member of Pulpit Committee.

It was also noted that he found time for these and other activities while maintaining one of the busiest general medical practices in the county. He seldom took any time off, and when he did it was to attend some function or convention.

"Only lately, since he became semi-retired has he taken any time off for personal pleasure. Even his recent trip to Europe was planned to visit European POW's whom he helped during World War II," it was pointed

Obscene Telephone Call—Best Advice Is Hang Up

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—In exactly one and one half seconds you can be made a prisoner in your own home.

That's how long it takes for an obscene telephone call to reach a victim—the duration of a single ring.

Such calls have become so numerous that several telephone companies are issuing pamphlets with tips on how to deal with the problem; the police have developed a voice print device for arresting the abusers; and psychiatrists are studying the growing problem.

A recent survey showed that over the Bell Telephone System alone more than 3,000 obscene calls are made in the United States each day.

The typical call comes late at night to a woman and may begin with heavy breathing or a suggestive, "Hello, honey." The caller then lets loose with a volley of obscenities or erotic suggestions.

The more ingenious caller invents a reason for calling. One Connecticut caller identified himself as a "Dr. West" and said he was doing a survey for a Kinsey study. He then questioned the woman on her sexual behavior and physical statistics.

All authorities agree that the smart woman should immediately hang up.

Dr. John Donnelly, psychiatrist-in-chief at Hartford's Institute of Living, a private mental hospital, feels that "the woman who reacts is more likely to get another call."

"The callers tend to be more hostile to women and quite socially inhibited, but underneath they are very aggressive," Dr. Donnelly said. He said that although the caller is performing an action whose context is sexual, this is only one aspect of the problem and "symptomatic of a deep, general inadequacy."

"What he is trying to seek is a response, to make the woman fearful so that he can have a sense of dominance over her."

The psychiatrist said general statistics on the problem show the obscene caller tends "to be a late adolescent or young adult." He also said "these people tend to be more exhibitionists at a distance rather than the sort who would physically confront a woman directly."

Men who are driven to make such calls generally are insecure and impotent and cannot acquire self-esteem in ways approved by society.

When a woman registers shock, the response gives the man ego-reinforcement and the potency bolster he needs.

The problem was called to the attention of Congress last fall by Rep. Thomas J. Meskill, R-Conn., who introduced legislation which would make it a federal crime to transmit obscene messages over interstate telephone systems. The bill would impose a maximum fine of $1,000 or a maximum jail term of one year or both.

In most states such calls are a misdemeanor.

Meskill's measure, assigned to the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, also provides punishment for anyone "who knowingly permits any telephone under his control to be used for any purpose prohibited by the law."

The restrictive bill metes out punishment "whether or not conversation ensues."

The Southern New England Telephone Co. of New Haven, issues an eight-page booklet dealing with such phone calls.

The booklet advises the victim to hang up immediately. "Don't give him a chance to get started," it warns.

The telephone company inserted an "annoyance call log" into the booklet which has check spaces for the date, time, type of call, members of family at home, those absent from home, a description of the caller's voice, whether or not there is background music and whether the family has had any recent publicity in the local papers.

The company feels the log could, if necessary, help the police establish a pattern that could identify the source of the calls.

Telephone experts also have developed an electronic trap, which "bugs" the victim's phone and often makes it possible to trace calls to their point of origin. In tracing a call, the connection usually must be maintained and the caller "strung along" for at least 10 minutes.

This device usually is used when a woman has been receiving a volley of calls.

The line of one telephone operator was tagged when she began to receive a rash of calls at her home. The offender turned out to be her former husband, recently released from prison, whom she had not seen for a decade.

One protective device is called "voice print identification." Col. Leslie Williams of the Connecticut State Police says the device has resulted in the arrest of at least five suspects.

"The device works like fingerprints," Williams said. A New Jersey firm developed the process that makes a graphic representation of the caller's voice on the victim's telephone dial until a woman answers the phone.

For this reason, the doctor said women shouldn't list themselves in the telephone directory as "Mary Smith" but rather as "M. Smith." It isn't a complete deterrent, but may keep off some potential callers.

In 12 states there is no law against making obscene telephone calls. In most of the other 38, including Connecticut, it is listed as a misdemeanor and usually calls for a $10 or $20 fine.

Psychiatrist Donnelly said most obscene calls are made by disturbed persons who random dial until a woman answers the phone.

There's always a first time, however. A Hartford court last year fined a woman for making an obscene call to a neighbor.

Women are nearly always the victims of obscene calls and hardly ever make one. Dr. Donnelly said "I've never come across any women who make obscene calls."

There's always a first time, however. A Hartford court last year fined a woman for making an obscene call to a neighbor.

Family Support Up, Judge Elwyn Reports

KINGSTON

Family support petitions filed with Ulster County Family Court for 1968 were slightly less than the previous year. However, the total number of cases being serviced as well as the total dollar volume of all support payments collected and disbursed continues to increase.

There were 443 petitions for 1968 compared with 493 for 1967.

These figures were revealed in the annual report of the Family Court to the County Legislature this week.

Support cases, which include proceedings for the enforcement and the review and modification of old cases due to changing circumstances as well as new ones comprise more than 50 per cent of the court's case load.

According to figures released today by Judge Hugh R. Elwyn, judge of the Family Court, the Support Bureau began 1968 with 930 persons under court order to make support payments for dependent wives and/or children. At the close of the year the number had risen to 1,067, an increase of 14.7 per cent.

During the year 1967 support payments for dependent wives and children collected and disbursed through the Family Court totaled $587,789.69; during the year 1968 the court collected and disbursed a total of $656,992.45, an increase of 11.8 per cent over the previous year. From the total money collected in 1968, $65,472.44 was returned to the County Department of Social Services as partial reimbursements for welfare expenditures on behalf of dependent wives and children as compared with $59,299.73 for the year 1967 an increase of 10.3 per cent.

Since 1962 the first year of operation of the Family Court support payments for dependents collected and disbursed through the court have risen from $235,389.19 in the year 1962 to $656,992.45 in 1968, an increase of 178.6 per cent, while during the same period payments to the Department of Social Services for welfare recipients has risen from $15,972.50 in 1962 to $65,472.44 in 1968, an increase of 309.6 per cent.

During the year 1968 the court received a total of 1,524 new petitions and disposed of 1,486. The reported statistics as to the number of new cases which were filed and disposed of during the year include only those cases which were heard and disposed of by the court and do not reflect the many hundreds of matters involving families and children which were handled and disposed of informally by the Intake Service of the Probation Department without referral to the court.

Rochester GOP Elects Slate; Plans Dinners

ACCORD

Officers were elected by the Town of Rochester Republican Club and installation plans were made at a recent meeting.

William Krom was elected president. Others on the 1969 slate are Chick Logan, vice president; Mary Hamilton, secretary; Flossie Feltman, treasurer and Jeanne Bollin, financial secretary.

The new officers will be installed formally at a dinner March 25 at the Log Cabin, Kerhonkson.

Final plans were discussed for the annual Lincoln Day gala to be held on Saturday, March 1, at the Ukrainian National Association, Kerhonkson. The chairman, Ann Morgan, announced that cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m. followed by a smorgasbord at 7:30.

Assemblyman Clarence Lane of Greene County will be the guest speaker. Other attractions will include music for dancing, entertainment, and awards. Anyone wishing tickets for the gala may contact Mrs. Morgan or A. Richard Terwilliger, both in Kerhonkson.

Conservatives Set Meeting

The Kingston Area Conservative Party Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the County Courthouse and view a film entitled Stand Up for Freedom.

All club members are urged to attend and to bring a guest. Books may be obtained from the Conservative book library at each meeting.

AAUW Panel Discussion Slated Tonight

SISTER MARY GERALD

DR. GEORGE B. ERBSTEIN

RAYMOND A. NELSON

The February meeting of the University Women will feature a panel discussion, "Does Our School System Challenge Our Students," this evening at 8 o'clock in the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, Kingston. All current and prospective members of AAUW are invited to attend this timely presentation.

Panel members include Sister Mary Gerald, Principal of John A. Coleman High School; Raymond A. Nelson, Headmaster of Ulster Academy; Dr. George B. Erbstein, President of Ulster County Community College and Thomas Carroll, Instructor of Biology at Rondout Valley Central High School, Stone Ridge.

Sister Mary Gerald was Principal of Notre Dame School, New York City, prior to coming to John A. Coleman High School. In 1963-1964, she was an instructor of English at Notre Dame School and previously had taught English at the Academy of St. Ursula, Kingston, for six years. Her educational credits are extensive and most impressive. A graduate of Fordham University, she received her MA degree at St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind., and was awarded a Diploma Magisterii in Scientiis Sacris by the Regina Mundi International School of Theology, Rome, Italy. In 1965, Sister Mary Gerald was issued an NDEA grant for a Film Study Institute at Fordham University.

Dr. Erbstein began his career in education in 1947 as an instructor of chemistry and zoology at Cazenovia Junior College, Cazenovia. He pursued this endeavor for three years, then spent the next 10 years as chemistry instructor and member of the founding faculty of Orange County Community College where he was also Director of Evening Extension and Community Services.

The years 1961-67 found him active as Dean of Faculty at Montgomery Junior College, Takoma Park, and Rockville, Md. From that period until the present time, he has been president of Ulster County Community College at Stone Ridge. Dr. Erbstein spent his early years as a close neighbor, having been born in Beacon.

Thomas Carroll of the Rondout Valley High School, was graduated from Rutgers University and has taught "everything possible" from fourth through tenth Grades. He is presently an instructor of Biology at RVC and his wife, Patricia, is instructor-librarian in the same school system at Accord and Kerhonkson.

The Rev. Raymond A. Nelson, A.B., S.T.B. brings to his position as Headmaster at Ulster Academy an educational background from Williams College, Harvard University, Episcopal Theological School, and Drew University from St. Bernard's School, N. J.

Ulster Academy, an independent and co-educational college preparatory day school serves the Mid-Hudson Area encompassing grades 7-10. It opened its doors in September 1968, and proposes among its educational: to excite the intellectual curiosity of each individual student; to train him in the discipline of study, inquiry and expression; and to strengthen the personal integrity of each student.

An exciting panel discussion is anticipated, with such provocative questions to be explored as: Why do pupils feel that the only way to voice objection or opinions must be through dissent or protest? If children are not challenged, is it because they lack motivation? Is this absence of motivation at home or elsewhere? Other questions to be covered will range from comparisons of students to evaluation of school systems and teaching techniques. There will be some time allowed to a period of audience participation, when questions and comments will be appropriate.

A business meeting will take place after the discussion and refreshments will be served by Mrs. Danied Van Wagenen, chairman, and her committee members, Mrs. Fred R. Port and Mrs. Edna Vickers.

Sisterhood Agudas Achim Plans Busy Business Meeting for Wednesday

A busy business meeting has been planned by members of Sisterhood, Congregation Agudas Achim, for Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Vestry.

The annual Purim dinner for the benefit of National Conference of Synagogue Youth will take place Sunday, March 2. Members will be contacted for reservations.

A Purim ball, sponsored by Jewish Community Council, will be held Saturday, March 8, at Congregation Ahavath Israel, Kingston. Tickets are available from Fay Selinger, Saugerties.

Theatre tickets for Donor Day, June 4, for two top shows, with names of those who are patrons may be made with Etta Schneider or Muriel Levine.

Sisterhood now offers a new way to remember loved ones. For memorials, simchas or any other reason, donations may be made to Building Fund and acknowledgement card will be mailed to the family. Sylvia Poppick and Helen Pollack are in charge.

Candies and cookies for Passover are now on sale. Orders may be given to Pinky Rudolph, Kingston. Deadline is February 28.

Members are requested to contact Roz Epstein, Kingston, with names of those who are patients at the hospital.

NANCY BECKERT

Cinderella Hour Approaching For Last Year's Valentine

Lovely 19 year old Nancy Beckert of Lake Katrine may cast a wistful glance at her Valentine Queen's crown these days but she will never forget the joy and happiness she felt when advised she had won the majority of 3,758 votes cast in last year's first annual Valentine Contest sponsored by The Freeman.

On February 14 a new queen will have been voted in by the reading public and Nancy will be left with wonderful memories.

"The whole experience of winning the 1968 Valentine Contest has been just wonderful," Miss Beckert told The Freeman this week. "I met so many wonderful people and received so many beautiful gifts. I just don't know how to thank everyone connected with the contest and particularly all will have been voted in by those marvelous people who voted for me."

Miss Beckert competed against 70 contestants last year. The 1969 Page One Valentine winner will have competed against 97 entries. Named finalists in the current contest are Joan Federman, Gloria Jean McCord, Merriann Motzer, Jeannie St. John, Catherine Ann Tucker and Maureen Weber. The finalists were chosen by an impartial panel of judges.

Complete Outfit
Miss Beckert also told The Freeman that thanks to the numerous gift certificates she received last year, she was able to outfit herself in the latest fashions and all in time for the 1968 Easter Parade. Later in the summer, when she vacationed at Ocean Beach, N.J., she took along two bathing suits received as a result of her winning the Freeman contest.

A student at Ulster County Community College, Nancy attended a college prom last year in a gown presented to her by Doreen's Bridals and Formal, Cosmetics, cosmetics, sweater, genuine leather purse, $50 U.S. Savings Bond, transistor radio and numerous other gifts were presented to her, including a dinner for herself and escort at Salvucci's Restaurant in West Hurley.

Queen Nancy has decided to become a teacher and will be graduated from UCC in June. She will continue her education but is undecided yet as to which college she will attend. A younger sister, Yvonne, 12, a student at St. Catherine Labourer School, Lake Katrine, is getting close to the age when she, too, can enter the Valentine contest.

A total of 32 gifts will be presented to the 1969 winner. Anyone may vote as long as the official Freeman ballot is used.

With only one day left to vote, interest is mounting rapidly. Perhaps it will be your ballot tonight which will decide the outcome. Though there are no glass slippers involved, judging from the number of ballots already received, there are plenty of Prince Charmings who are voting OFTEN for the "Peg of their heart."

Food Tips
Meat should never be cut while hot when packing freezer dinners. It slices better when cold, without tearing, and looks prettier.

A colander can be inverted over a skillet when frying anything where grease is popping—bacon, chicken, etc. Heat escapes but splatters are caught on the colander. This saves cleaning the stove.

WHOSE LITTLE VALENTINE ARE YOU?

Kingston, N. Y., Feb. 11—Friday is the day of hearts, flowers and pretty women. We hope all participants of the day will be in "topnotch" beauty. It is the start of the "end of winter" drive to bring Spring a little closer. A new permanent from Mickey's will help.

And, if you still haven't gotten a present as yet, a Beauty Gift Certificate from Mickey's is a wonderful Valentine Gift idea.

We will accommodate as many walk-ins as possible. Try us.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of the Emily Post Institute
DINING BY CANDLELIGHT

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there a correct time for lighting candles — may I do it just before dessert, and turn off normal lighting? Or should they be lighted throughout the meal? Also, should new candles have the wicks burned before being used for guests? — Wanda.

Dear Wanda: When candles are to be used at the dinner table, they should be lighted just before the diners sit down. If there are enough candles to give good light, other lights may be turned off and nothing could be lovelier. If, however, the diners can't see to cut their chicken or find their peas, it is far more sensible to leave a light or two on.

Since the candles should be lighted before guests enter the dining room there is no need to burn the wicks ahead of time.

Groom's Father
May Escort Bride

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for the bridegroom's father to give the bride away? My fiancée is a foreigner and has no close male friends or relatives in this country. — Henry.

Dear Henry: It is up to the bride—if this is what your fiancée would like, it is perfectly correct. In fact, it would be a warm and friendly gesture.

Introducing Stepparents

Dear Mrs. Post: This is our second marriage. My husband has three married daughters and I have one married daughter. How should they introduce us? — Mrs. T.

Dear Mrs. T.: Even though your stepchildren may properly call you by your first names, it shows for more respect to introduce you each as "my stepmother" or "my stepfather." If the people are strangers to both of you, your stepdaughters and your daughter — all of whose names are different from yours — should say "My father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. T." or "My mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. T." Valentine Buffet
And Dinner-Dance
For Saugerties Club

Plans for forthcoming projects were discussed at a meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Nicholas Pinto, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Woman's Club of Saugerties.

Mrs. Nicholas Pinto reported that plans have been completed for the Valentine buffet and dinner-dance to be held on Friday, Feb. 14 beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Sawyerkill Country Club in Saugerties. Mrs. Edward Ruszyk, ticket chairman for the affair, reported that tickets are still available for the special fund-raising project. Proceeds from this project will benefit the Ruth M. Gustin Scholarship Fund, which is awarded to the most deserving female high school graduate of Saugerties. Mrs. Norman Nitcheke also reported that the decorations committee is being assisted by Mrs. James LaDolce, Mrs. Robert Cole, and Mrs. Alma Rodgers.

Chairman Mrs. Albert Treu, reported that the Woman's Club will hold its first rummage sale at 88 Partition Street on Friday, March 14 from 1 to 8 p.m. and on Saturday, March 15, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mrs. Treu will gratefully accept donations of bric-a-brac, clothing, dishes, household articles, and other appropriate items at 6 Austin Avenue, or arrangements can be made for collection by contacting Co-Chairman Mrs. Stephen Dodig.

Mrs. Richard Dunn, chairman of the annual luncheon and fashion show, reported that May 10 has been chosen as the date for this popular event. Fashions will be furnished by Nugent's of Kingston Plaza and will be modeled by Club members. Co-Chairman Mrs. Robert Cole will also be in charge of decorations with Mrs. Joseph Sullivan serving as ticket chairman. Mrs. Edward Ruszyk will head the models committee and Mrs. William Ashmore will be commentator.

The sale of candy will continue through April for the benefit of the Ruth M. Gustin Memorial Scholarship Fund and other community services sponsored by the Woman's Club. Mrs. James Mills is chairman of this project.

Other members also working on the Ways and Means Committee projects are Mrs. Erwin Tate, Mrs. Walter Briggs, Mrs. Frank Lauffer, Mrs. William Spanfeller, and Mrs. Stephen Ryan.

HURLEY PONCHO — Jeanne Keator and Audria Warren, co-owners of Sit 'n Knit Yarn Shop, Hurley, developed an idea last spring for a poncho as an easy project for their customers which could be completed by new knitters. The owners of the Hurley shop have just been notified by Candide Yarns of Woodbury, Conn., that the company has adapted this-poncho pattern for use with their yarn. It has been printed for national distribution and features easy-to-follow directions. Knitted of the heavy-weight water-resistant yarn, it can be made in children and adult sizes in a wide range of color choices. Many customers have made the ponchos in mother-daughter combinations. Pictured here is Miss Sylvia Yhlen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Yhlen of Hurley, an eighth grade student at J. Watson Bailey Junior High School. Mrs. Yhlen made the poncho for Sylvia using Maritime Blue, a heathery blue-green shade. Both yarn and patterns are available at Sit 'n Knit Yarn Shop. (Freeman photo by Haines)

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN

Kingston, New Paltz and Saugerties at Home

By DENNIS CARO

KINGSTON Monticello High. It seems, has forced its way into a prominent place on the Kingston High School basketball team, despite the fact that in the pre-season ratings the Panthers were not expected to win more than one DUSO League game. They go at it tonight at the Kale Walton field house in their second meeting of the season. Fielding one of the weakest teams in the school's history, Coach Bucky Roche figured to seek at least one in on the upset route on his own court and Kingston was the patsy a little less than a month ago. The Monties came up with 11 straight points in the final period to nip Kingston, 52-50 and hand the Maroons their first league loss—a loss that started a chain of misfortune that at one point saw them fighting to keep their heads above the .500 mark. Kingston dropped a home-court contest to Newburgh, dimming its hopes for a third consecutive loop championship, and then got back on the winning track with decisions over Our Lady of Lourdes, Port Jervis and Valley Central. Maroon Now 1-5 Boasting a current 8-5 overall mark, Coach Jack Gilligan said he has hopes for a 13-5 or 12-4 record (depending probably on his fortunes at Newburgh Free Academy next week), a state good enough for second place in the DUSO, a bid to the Section 9 tournament and a third crack at the Goldbacks. And Monticello could be the key. Although the loss of their fine ball-handling guard Marty Levy makes the Panthers far weaker for tonight's contest, they forced Valley League powerhouse Liberty to come up with a strong fourth quarter effort to gain a one-point win last Friday and should be just as tough against the Maroons. Kingston, which dressed only eight men for the 66-61 win over Valley Central Friday, will most likely be in the same predicament tonight. A well John Senter could give Gilligan nine potential players, but the loss of the oft-injured Gene Bruno for the season with mononucleosis, the tragic death of Mike Hoffman and the failure of Gary Matthews' shoulder separation to come around leaves the Maroons with a well-riddled squad.

Gilligan, no longer able to watch his team win on the sheer power of man-to-man matchups, has resorted to zones and combinations in the last two outings and produced the same results. New Strategy Worked A tricky combination on Port's Tom McCooney helped even the Maroon's DUSO slate two weeks ago and Gilligan used the same strategy on Valley Central's big point man Chris Hoornbeck with equal effectiveness. Gene Walker and John Snowden have been the only double figure performers for Monticello of late and should the Monties find an adequate solution to the 1-3-1 zone the veteran coach figures to give them man-to-man coverage while retaining a partial zone for board strength. In other area hoop action, Saugerties entertains Roosevelt of Hyde Park. Red Hook hosts Rondout Valley. John A. Coleman is at New Paltz and Rhinebeck travels to Pine Plains. Roosevelt came from behind to nip Beacon at the buzzer, 76-74, while the Sawyers were losing to Poughkeepsie in the second quarter Friday night, and the second place Presidents aren't expected to have a much easier time in this one. Bad Sawyer Year Saugerties hasn't been winning all season, but of late coach Bud Smith's squad has been coming a lot closer. "I think we have a good chance," Smith said, "if we can contain Ron Blass (46 points against Beacon and way on top of the Dutchess County Scholastic League's scoring list) and Roger Pratorius doesn't foul out." Rondout is one of the only two teams to beat Red Hook this season, and the Ganders' home court decision back in December marked the last time Pete Lawson's Raiders have lost. Undeatable on their home court and owning a 10-game winning streak that includes a two-pointer over Ulster County Athletic League powerhouse Onteora, the Raiders want this one for a lot more than just number 11. Onteora was the other team to beat Red Hook, and a win tonight gives the Raiders a victory over every team on their schedule.

Red Hook wrapped up the championship in the DCSL's Hudson Valley Section Friday with a win over Pine Plains and if Rhinebeck can duplicate the feat the Indians will gain at least a tie for second place. The Plainsmen ran away from Rhinebeck the first time these two squads met two weeks ago, but, coach Jay Kosseff said "We have a habit of playing some of our best games on their court." Coleman has been over-matched in the majority of its games this year and Coach Frank Davis' Hugenots should prove no exception. Scheduling only the toughest teams in the UCAI, Coleman has been improving of late, but not enough to advance in the games won column.

Ulster Meets Sullivan Next; Westchester 'Crucial' Friday

KINGSTON at 8 p.m. at the municipal auditorium. Coach Mike Perry of Ulster County Community College wasn't unduly disturbed about the postponement of last night's scheduled Mid-Hudson Conference contest with wipless Sullivan County CC. The game has been rescheduled for Wednesday night at 8 p.m. at the municipal auditorium. "Maybe, it's just as well," Perry said. "It's brings us two days closer to the big one with Westchester." The MHC showdown is slated Friday night on the Westchester court. Sullivan, with its 0-6 conference mark and incredible 0-16 overall, doesn't figure to cause UCCC too much trouble, but Perry remains wary. "At this stage of the season, you play them one at a time," he said. "And I'm warning the boys not to look past Sullivan to Westchester." Lead Defense-Offense UCCC goes into the Sullivan contest armed with several impressive statistics.

Latest figures show the Senators leading the circuit with the best team scoring average—99.0 points per contest—and best defensive mark-average yield of 60.1 points a game. Westchester is runnerup in both categories with 89.1 on offense and 76.6 on defense. Ron Beadle of Rockland tops the league scorers with a 26-point average on 183 points in seven games. Tom Royce of Dutchess has dropped to second with 20.7. Steve Washington of Westchester is third with 18.0, ahead of UCCC's Jim Moss (17.0) and Gary Kirkwood (15.5). Washington is the leading rebounder with 14.9 per game, with Kirkwood second at 13.0 and Ray Lindhorst third with 12.9 a game.

Pairings Leave Taste Of Ashe(s) With Clark

SALISBURY, Md. (UPI)—The pairings for the 66th U.S. Men's Indoor Tennis Championships suited Clark Graebner just fine. Graebner feels his sudden rise in prominence at the tournament—because of the withdrawal of sore-elbowed Arthur Ashe—"is a heckuva way to become the favorite" but he is looking at the competition with high hopes of winning it. "I like the draw I got, which shouldn't give me a really tough match until the semi-finals, when I should be playing Stan Smith," Graebner said Monday, after he routed 12-time Hungarian champ Istvan Guliyas 6-2, 6-2 in less than 30 minutes.

Austin First Pick by Vince

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A one-time Green Bay aide is the first member of the coaching staff Vince Lombardi is molding for his initial year at the helm of the Washington Redskins. Lombardi picked Bill Austin, former Pittsburgh Steeler head coach and the first assistant Lombardi tabbed for his staff in 1959 when he began his regime at Green Bay. It was Lombardi's first official action since taking over as head coach and part owner of the Redskins last week. "He's been with me from the very beginning. I am extremely pleased to have him back," Lombardi said of Austin, whom he designated as offensive line coach. The 40-year-old Austin was released as Steelers head coach after three seasons. He played college football at Oregon State.

also, it was South Carolina 106-79 over Clemson, Colorado 92, Oklahoma 69, Kansas 45-41 over Oklahoma State, Creighton 94, Oklahoma City 80, The Citadel 79-77 over Virginia Military, Seattle over Portland U. 107-63 and Southern Miss over Spring Hill 110-79.

Tulane's balanced attack led by Johnny Arthurs, Terry Habig and Bob Spruck overcame Maravich's scoring spree and enabled the Green Wave to beat LSU.

Arthurs had 29 points, Habig 26 and Spruck 17 as Tulane shot 56 per cent from the floor. Maravich, playing on a bad knee and a sore ankle, sank 25 field goals and 16 of 20 free throws, shattering the SEC single game record of 60 scored by Bob Pettit of LSU against Louisiana College during the 1953-54 season.

The 66 points were seven more than Maravich had ever scored before. The floppy-haired junior is the national scoring leader with a 43 point-per-game average. North Carolina scored 10 straight points early in the game to sprint in front of N.C. State and opened a 39-21 lead by halftime. Charlie Scott and Bill Bunting Wiles 21 for the losers.

The Big Snowfall Clogs Sports Sked

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Crippled transportation facilities in the snowed-over Northeast continued to set back the area's sports schedule today, but relief was in sight for stranded athletes and shut-in fans alike. While snow-removal units in the Middle Atlantic and New England states worked at clearing airport runways, rail beds and highways, two race tracks remained shut down for the second successive day. Officials at Lincoln Downs, R.I., planned to reopen the thoroughbred track Wednesday and harness racing at Yonkers, N.Y., was expected to resume Wednesday night. The tracks canceled their Monday and Tuesday cards after the 10-15 inch snowfall blocked access roads and left huge drifts along the racing strips. Meanwhile, the National Basketball Association hoped to pick up its schedule following the postponement of a Monday night doubleheader at Philadelphia because two of the four clubs were unable to arrive on time. The Boston Celtics and Philadelphia 76ers, who played in Boston Sunday, couldn't get out of that city by air or rail. The San Diego Rockets, who were to meet the Celtics, and the Cincinnati Royals, who were to play the 76ers, arrived in Philadelphia, but the twin bill was put off and a new date hasn't been set.

Several college contests also fell victim to the storm's after-effects, among them the Seton Hall-St. Bonaventure basketball game at Olean, N.Y. It was postponed to a later date when the visiting Seton Hall team couldn't make connections out of New York.

Two winter baseball gatherings in New York, a press conference for Mets Manager Gil Hodges and a press get-together with new Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, were set back from Monday to Thursday because of the snow-transportation tie up.

Three New York Rangers players, stranded in the snow on the way to the city Sunday night, missed the National Hockey League game against Philadelphia—only about one third of the 17,250 ticket holders showed up—but finally arrived at 2 a.m., Monday. The Rangers, who stayed in a midtown hotel after the game, scheduled practice at a suburban rink today and then hoped to board an afternoon flight to Oakland—provided the logjam at the airports is broken.

Wilt's Accuracy Sharpest Ever

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wilt Chamberlain, after a week of torrid shooting highlighted by his 66-point effort against Phoenix on Sunday, has increased his accuracy rating—best in the National Basketball Association—from .574 to .580. Making 59 of the 95 shots he fired in the past week, Chamberlain moved even farther ahead of Jerry Lucas of Cincinnati in that department. Lucas ended the week at .562. In the scoring race itself, Elvin Hayes of San Diego continued his domination, enjoying a 320-point margin—1,793 to 1,473—over Bob Rule of Seattle. Oscar Robertson, of Cincinnati with 1,465, is pressing Rule. Earl Monroe of Baltimore is fourth in the standings with 1,441. ## Havana Specials— The 15th of Year

CARACAS (UPI)—Despite intense airport security measures a Venezuelan government-owned DC9 with 69 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba today while flying between Maracaibo and Maiquetia, the airline announced.

Maracaibo Airport reported the DC9, first Venezuelan aircraft hijack this year and the third since March, 1968, landed at Santiago de Cuba at 8:45 a.m.

It was the 15th hijack of the year to Cuba and there have been two unsuccessful attempts. Ten of the planes hijacked were American, including an Eastern Airlines DC8 Monday with 119 persons aboard.

Details on how today's hijacking was carried out were not known immediately.

First reports that the plane, one of the newest in the state-owned Linea Aeropostal Venezolana (LAV) fleet, was hijacked was announced at Maiquetia Airport. Later, LAV spokesmen confirmed the report.

It was unofficially reported that two Venezuelan national guard officers were among the 69 persons aboard. Luis Moreno Gomez of the Creole Petroleum Corp., also was reported aboard.

The pilot was identified as Capt. Vladimir Fernandez and copilot as Carlos Anzola. Two of the three hostesses were Sonia Alvarez and Fedora Suarez.

The control tower at Maiquetia reported the plane had radioed Kingston, Jamaica, that it was flying to Santiago de Cuba. It left Maracaibo at 7:35 a.m. EST and was hijacked at 7:43 a.m. EST.

Fish, Goodell Open Joint Kingston Office Saturday

KINGSTON — Although the office has been plans, the senator will not be open and operating for some weeks, the official opening is a move to get the public acquainted with the services provided by the joint district office.

"This marks the first time in state history that an office will be jointly shared by a U.S. Senator and Congressman, and on both federal and state levels I believe this historic move will prove uniquely beneficial to the public," the congressman said.

Although the opening had Kingston district office been scheduled for Feb. 15 to serve as Sen. Goodell's office fit with Sen. Goodell's for the entire Hudson Valley.

The public is invited to attend the official opening of the Ulster County district office of Sen. Charles Goodell and Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. to be held at 5 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 15, it was announced today by Congressman Fish.

"The public is cordially invited to drop in to get acquainted at the new location at 292 Fair Street, Kingston, the congressman said in making the announcement.

Although senators have maintained offices in New York City and elsewhere in the state in the past, this marks the first time that such an office has been located in the Hudson Valley for assistance of people of our area," Rep. Fish explained.

"Sen. Goodell has asked me to extend his apologies to the people of Ulster County for his inability to attend the opening on Saturday. He has asked me to assure them that he will be in our area in the months ahead," the congressman explained.

Prior to the 5 p.m. open house, a press conference with area press people is scheduled at the Kingston district office at 4:30 p.m.

Nixon to Push Space Program, Claims Borman

BONN, Germany (AP)—Col. Frank Borman said today that President Nixon intends to push ahead with America's space program.

Borman, commander of the round-the-moon Apollo 8 flight, told a news conference that at a White House meeting with Nixon, he was "deeply impressed with the President's interest in the space program and his desire that it should go on in the quest for peace."

Borman, who flew here from Amsterdam for the fifth stop of his eight-nation European tour, added: "I personally believe it essential that we continue with the vital space program."

"It has accelerated technology not only in our country but throughout the world to an extent hitherto achieved only through war. It is one area we dare not neglect."

Man, Woman Found Dead

PIKE, N.Y. (AP)—The bodies of a man and a woman were found in a parked automobile Monday and a Wyoming County Coroner said they apparently died of asphyxiation caused by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Sheriff's deputies said Miss Thelma L. Remington, 27, of Pike, and William C. Drew, 30, of Castle, were found slumped in the front seat of the car.

They said the car's exhaust system was defective and the ignition was turned on, but the gas tank was empty.

They had been dead for more than 24 hours, the coroner said.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A call by President Nixon for legislation to control some conglomerates comes when the sprawling business empires—stitched together by mergers of companies in unrelated fields—are already under increasing scrutiny by the government.

The Florida White House said over the weekend Nixon had asked the Treasury Department to draw up legislation aimed at one-bank holding companies, which are single banks that have set up holding companies capable of expanding into unrelated areas.

An authoritative Treasury Department source said Monday that such legislation already was in the works and will be introduced in about a week. He said it would zero in not only on one-bank holding companies, but also on conglomerates comprised of manufacturing and other types of companies showing an increasing appetite for banks.

Since the number of one-bank holding companies has nearly doubled in four years, administration spokesmen said, it is felt there is no time to be lost in defusing the situation.

Spokesmen noted that there were more than 80 one-bank holding companies in December with aggregate deposits of more than $100 billion. In 1965 there were 550, mostly small ones, with $15 billion in deposits.

Colgate President at Rites— It's Clear Revolution Underway

COLGATE, N.Y. (AP)—Dr. Franklin W. Wallin, president pro tempore of Colgate University, opened the school's sesquicentennial celebration Monday by asserting, "The word 'relevance' is becoming a trash can for every complaint."

Wallin, delivering the main address, on "Colgate and the Outside World," said the academic community "must be free from the struggle to transform society" if it is to seek solutions, but must also keep "pace with the process of change."

Four Examples

The dean of the faculty offered four examples of how keeping pace with change may help the academic community:

—Research projects that challenge students to more penetration and originality.

—Off-campus work and service opportunities for students.

—Practical programs in social and public service pursued on and off campus.

—Increasing the college's relation to the rural and urban areas which immediately surround it.

"It is clear that a revolution is taking place," Wallin said.

"Our duty to ourselves and to our students requires that for the development of imaginative and skillful minds in the major fields of human knowledge, we must help them live their intellectual lives in the world. Students must be encouraged to develop their sense of social concern; a readiness to make a public contribution; to place the general good above their selfish desires."

"Many students and some faculty members, as well as the alumni and general public, feel that the college is not satisfactorily performing this connecting function. Others criticize us, and this is more stylish now, for escapism, frightened adherence to inflexible requirements, in short, a lack of relevance."

Word of the impending bill follows a flurry of government interest in the growth of conglomerates.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee suggested Sunday that conglomerates go slow in snatching up companies if they are depending on current tax provisions to give them a break.

Besides the Ways and Means Committee, the Federal Communications and Trade commissions plan separate looks into the conglomerates as does the House antitrust subcommittee.

The House Banking and Currency Committee issued a 393-page report Monday warning against the growth of one-bank holding companies. No legislation was proposed, but the committee chairman, Texas Democrat Wright Patman, is expected to propose his own bill next week.

The Treasury Department source said the legislation now being written would set down strict boundaries for one-bank holding companies, compelling them to stick to financial activities instead of branching into manufacturing or other fields.

Under the Bank Holding Act of 1956, a company holding 25 per cent interest in two or more banks was barred from control of any nonbanking concern.

But companies holding a single bank were left unregulated. This loophole has allowed conglomerates to take over one bank while at the same time allowing single banks to set up their own holding company which would take control of the original bank and move into any areas it wished.

At their simplest, the issues surrounding the magic word 'relevance' are simply a variation of the old utilitarian challenge to intellectualism. They can be countered with the argument that intellectual training will bear indirectly on most human problems, and, further, that direct utility is not the only measure of value."

Yet, Wallin continued, "there is another sense in which the demand for relevance is valid. Whether you view the contemporary world in terms of disorder or change, it is that our times call into question the foundations of our social structure and the foundations of a liberal arts education...."

"How should the college respond? In a word, cautiously, for the college must preserve an orderly and stable community where a continuity of knowledge, and exploration of method, a process of learning can take place. The college has a double responsibility not only to explore new theories in social needs but also to question and resist the temptation to accept premature solutions."

Avoid Being Modish

"We must maintain the long view into both the past and the future and avoid being merely modish. At the same time, we must consider that at any moment in the time the knowledge that men treasure is conjectural and conditional. That it is itself subject to change."

"Keeping pace with the process of change is more important than to preserve and defend an intellectual tradition."

Wallin concluded: "We can do more for the faculty and undergraduates by providing collaboration in scholarship and cooperative experience in research. It is very important for the future of liberal learning that the theoretical and practical be coupled, that there be an opportunity for direct experience and the exercise of some responsibility for the outcome."

Much Opposition Expected On Plan to Regulate Banks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A the administration's failure to alter the 1956 law so that it regulate banks, their mergers and outside business activities appeared headed today for stiff opposition from congressmen who are more concerned about the holding companies which increasingly control banks.

Treasury Department officials said Monday the administration would send Congress a bill Feb. 20 requiring "one-bank holding companies" — firms holding stock in only one bank—to register with the government.

Regulation responsibilities, said the officials, would be split among three federal agencies—the Federal Reserve Board, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Each would be charged with drawing up guidelines on bank-related activities which a holding company could continue to offer.

Currently, only those firms which hold more than 25 per cent of the stock of two or more banks are required by the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 to register and their activities are regulated by the Federal Reserve Board alone.

Critics object specifically to the administration's plan to divide enforcement responsibilities among three agencies would allow registrants to play one agency off against another and weaken the regulations covering them.

Disclosure of the administration proposal coincided Monday with an announcement by Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee, that his panel would investigate the "startling" growth of unregulated bank holding companies which direct numerous business operations through a single bank.

They also contend that the administration's plan to divide enforcement responsibilities among three agencies would allow registrants to play one agency off against another and weaken the regulations covering them.

Smith to Confer With Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ger-ard C. Smith new director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, will become the first high Nixon administration official to join in an international conference with Soviet representatives.

Smith's meeting with the Russians will come when he attends the next session of 18-nation disarmament commission opening in Geneva March 6.

There had been speculation that Smith's short time in office might cause President Nixon to send a temporary representative.

But Smith, in an interview, said "It would make sense for the new director of the agency to present the American position and also get to know the other disarmament negotiators." Ultimately Smith will be deeply involved in U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting the deployment of nuclear missiles. When such talks will start, is uncertain. The nuclear missile talks are independent of the international commission.

Nixon said recently he wanted to hold discussions on this issue when the would help promote solution of political problems, such as the Middle East crisis.

Smith said that progress in arms control talks and work on solving East-West political problems should go forward simultaneously.

"However," he said, "I don't think we should anticipate a package deal. What we are talking about is the importance of parallel action in both fields."

Canada Ready To Hold Talks With Red China

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian government has notified Red China it is prepared to open talks on establishment of diplomatic relations.

Foreign Minister Mitchell Sharp told the House of Commons Monday the Canadian na. His speech Monday brought a second protest from Formosa's ambassador in Ottawa, Hsueh Yu-Chi, who said: "It is still the hope of my government that the Canadian government will reconsider."

Sharp acknowledged that Canada's relations with Nationalist China are "bound to be affected." But he denied that Canada is allowing these relations to "go down the drain," indicating Ottawa would like to have a two-China policy.

Both Chinas are against this. During preliminary contacts with Canada in Cairo, the Red Chinese reportedly demanded that Ottawa withdraw its recognition of Nationalist China as a condition for diplomatic relations with Peking.

Unjustly Blamed Say Assessors

KINGSTON Assessors are unjustly blamed for the rates and amount of taxes billed by units of government, and assessor is an improper name for the office.

This was the main theme of a statement released this week by the Ulster County Assessors Association at a recent meeting held in the county office building.

An assessors sole duty is to inventory all real estate property in his designated area, the statement continued.

Assessors do not calculate, levy, or bill taxes. The real property tax law states that the assessor shall discover, value and list on the assessment roll of that year all real property, land and improvements, according to the full value thereof. The courts will accept a fractional value because prices and demand change rapidly. The part value is calculated as an average for each assessing office by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment from actual sales and spot appraisals and stated as an equalization rate used by school districts, special districts and counties to levy taxes on all property at full value.

Questions on taxation should be presented at annual budget hearings.

The town assessors will answer any questions in regard to assessments, value, error or description, spelling or addresses, exemption application, apportionment or taxes on divided parcels and dog damage to domestic animals.

The assessors office is responsible for the appraising and accounting for of property ranging from $2,102.165 to $110,510.395 in full value within 21 assessing districts in the county.

The county association favors and is promoting the establishment of a county wide property description map of all real property showing all parcels by outline, position and owner with a county director's office to maintain the maps and to coordinate all assessing functions in the county.

Under the bill drawn up by Blanton, the votes would be combined. A candidate, for instance, who got 200,000 votes under the Wallace party label and 200,000 as a Democratic nominee would be credited with a total of 400,000.

It might also encourage the election of some Republicans to state offices now held exclusively by Democrats.

Proposed New Law Could Aid Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A proposed new Alabama election law could open the way for George C. Wallace to form a new party in his own state without taking votes from Democrats seeking state and local office.

The measure suggested by state Rep. John Blanton of Selma would allow candidates to run under two or more party labels.

In the 1972 presidential election particularly—assuming Wallace runs again—office seekers could get on the ballot under the Wallace party emblem and get the benefits of whatever degree of popularity the former governor has retained.

And they could run on the Democratic ticket at the same time with the hope of getting the support of voters who prefer that party.

Under the bill drawn up by Blanton, the votes would be combined. A candidate, for instance, who got 200,000 votes under the Wallace party label and 200,000 as a Democratic nominee would be credited with a total of 400,000.

It might also encourage the election of some Republicans to state offices now held exclusively by Democrats.

At Auto Warranty Hearing: Proposals to Aid Consumer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warranties of 100,000 miles on for- eign and domestic automobiles, elimination of franchised new car dealers and the establishment of service centers by manufacturers were suggested today by a Lehigh University professor.

Dr. Adolph S. Butkys, assistant professor of economics and marketing, made the proposals to a Federal Trade Commission (FTC) hearing on automobile warranties.

Butkys said present warranties were "misleading, confusing, inadequate and unfair" and automobile service was "deplorable, inefficient, slow, expensive, often dishonest and aggravating."

He said his proposals would contribute to fair and equitable treatment for the consumer and to more efficient and profitable operation of the automobile industry.

"Warranties based on so many miles of operation or so many years of ownership, whichever comes first, are totally unfair to automobile owners," he said. "They should be based on mileage alone. The time element is just a sales gimmick at best and a deceptive rise at worst."

Butkys advocated a warranty of 100,000 miles on every family car with a base price of $1,900. After a breaking in period of 10,000 miles during which the manufacturer would be completely liable for any mechanical failure, the manufacturer's liability would decrease and the

Negro Help Tripled In Construction

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — An AFL-CIO official said today that construction unions, once a major target of racial discrimination complaints, have tripled the number of Negro and other minority group apprentices in the last nine months and might double the figure again this year.

"We're on the verge of something great," said Robert M.

McGlotten, a Negro who is on the staff of the labor federation's civil rights department. McGlotten, here for a meeting of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, said 2,400 Negro, Mexican-American and other minority youths were placed in apprenticeship in the past nine months through project Outreach. The effort is sponsored by the federal government, the 17 construction unions and civil rights groups.

The increase brought to about eight per cent the number of Negroes and other minority group youngsters in building trade apprenticeships in 52 cities and "this year we might double it to 16 per cent," he said.

Before the recent upsurge, the figure was below three per cent of the 50,000 construction union apprenticeships across the nation, he added.

"There'll be a big thrust between now and June when apprenticeship programs open again, and they can start to really move," McGlotten said. "There is no quota system. As many youths as can qualify will go in," he said.

"We're trying to put down the myth that labor isn't involved in training minority groups for jobs," McGlotten said.

Building trades officials concede that much of the gain in integrating construction unions' job training grew out of federal pressure and the hope of a big surge in government financed public housing construction that will create thousands of new jobs.

The federal law setting up the model cities slum rebuilding program requires the use of slum area residents in the work.

People Will Crowd
FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Boone County, Ky., across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, will be billed as "Boone Country" with the opening of a family entertainment park there by the summer of 1970.

Fess Parker, television's Daniel Boone, is investing $13.5 million in the park, to be called "Frontier World." The park is to depict the various frontiers in American history, from the pilgrims up to contemporary science and space frontiers and beyond.

Dear Abby

It's Never Too Late

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune - N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: As Los Angeles county social workers, we were very disappointed in your remarks, as we quote: "I for one am disgusted with handing over my tax dollars for the welfare of women who have one illegitimate child after another for the sole purpose of picking up the welfare check. I think that a woman who bears more than one illegitimate child should become automatically ineligible for welfare."

Abby, in L. A. county a woman with one child (legitimate or otherwise) receives aid in the amount of $148 a month. A second child increases her check LESS than one dollar a day! Do you really believe a woman would have one illegitimate baby after another for the sole purpose of picking up the welfare check? The fact is that many welfare recipients are so ashamed of their second pregnancies, they wait until the last moment to inform their case workers, thus sacrificing their $20 a month pre-natal allowance.

Our agency dispenses information on family planning, and contraceptives FREE thru the Medi-Cal program, and most talked some and then stopped clients are extremely receptive to their use.

Aid to Dependent Children is just that, paid to the CHILDREN — not to parents, just as if a woman becomes illegitimate child, it's the child who suffers. Is that fair? Please reconsider.

KETZIN, SHANTON, DICKER, and SCHMIDT, DEAR KETZIN, SHANTON, DICKER, and SCHMIDT, and the many other informed persons who wrote to point out the above to me. We can all learn. I have learned. I am grateful.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's boss comes to town, and instead of having their business conferences in the office, she goes to his motel room, and she doesn't get home until the early hours in the morning.

She is very indignant when I tell her I don't think it's proper. I am honestly not doubting her morals. I love her and trust her, but this is a small country town and the folks here like gossip.

I am not asking you to agree with me, just tell me what you think and it will go no further.

SMALL TOWN HUSBAND. DEAR HUSBAND: Business conferences should be carried on in an office, and during business hours. As her husband, you have a right to object — and loudly!

DEAR ABBY: I feel like an absolute crumb. Friday night I was out with a wonderful boy. It was our third date, and we both had a great time. We

DEAR MADE: Sorry, but I think your girlfriend made the boo boo. Don't apologize. Your frankness shouldn't "hurt" him. In fact, he should thank you for the tip.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE NAIVE MRS. S., GRANADA HILLS": People who send unsigned letters and anonymous clippings in the mails are vicious, gutless, pathetic creatures. Pray for them.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO HAVE A LOVELY WEDDING," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90069.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

THIEVES: (Q.) My girl friends and I know some boys who steal things. When we talk to them about it they say, "Why pay if you can get it free?"

We have tried everything to get them to change—even refusing to have dates with them.

Please help us. We like them and hate to see them ruin their lives. Except for this stealing, they are good boys.—A Reader in Orlando, la.

(A.) You've done what you can, and you've found out you can't change these boys. So find some other boys who don't steal.

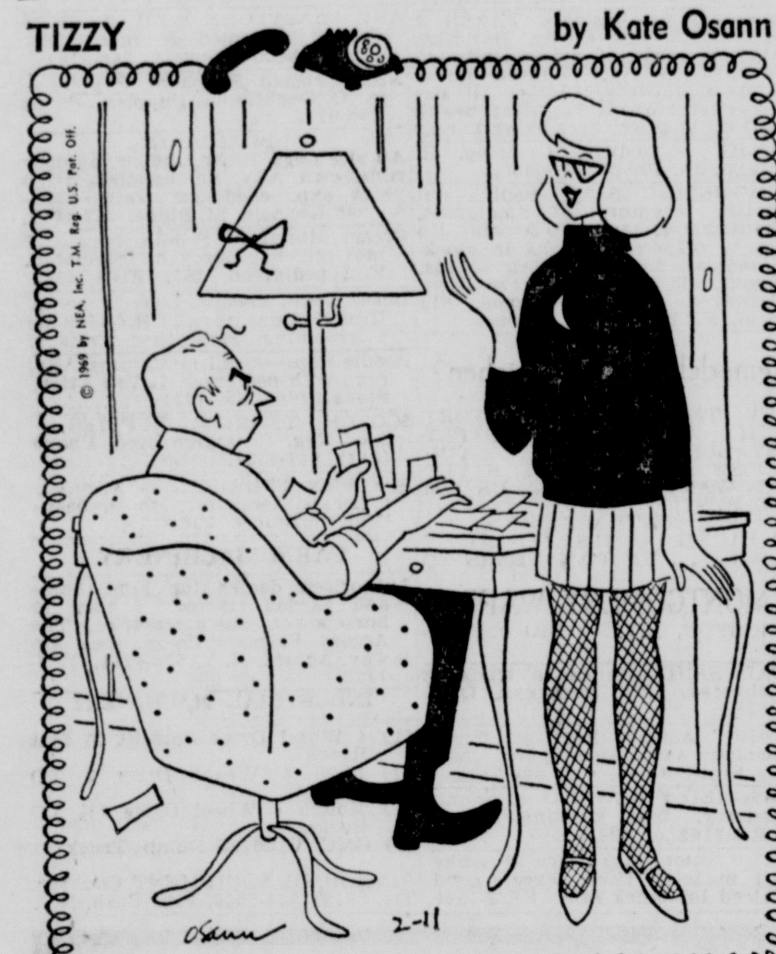

To protect your reputation and your future peace of mind, mark these sticky-fingered boys off your list now.

One of the unhappiest people in the world is a girl or woman attached to a boy or man who can't see that some things belong to him and some don't.

TOO MANY? (Q.) I have a friend who dates a different boy every week. She wants to quit doing this, but she can't. I'm writing you because she's my friend and I want to help her. What do you suggest?—A reader in Lubbock, Texas.

(A.) Quit worrying about her and take care of your own business. It is all right for a girl to date different boys as long as she conducts herself decently.

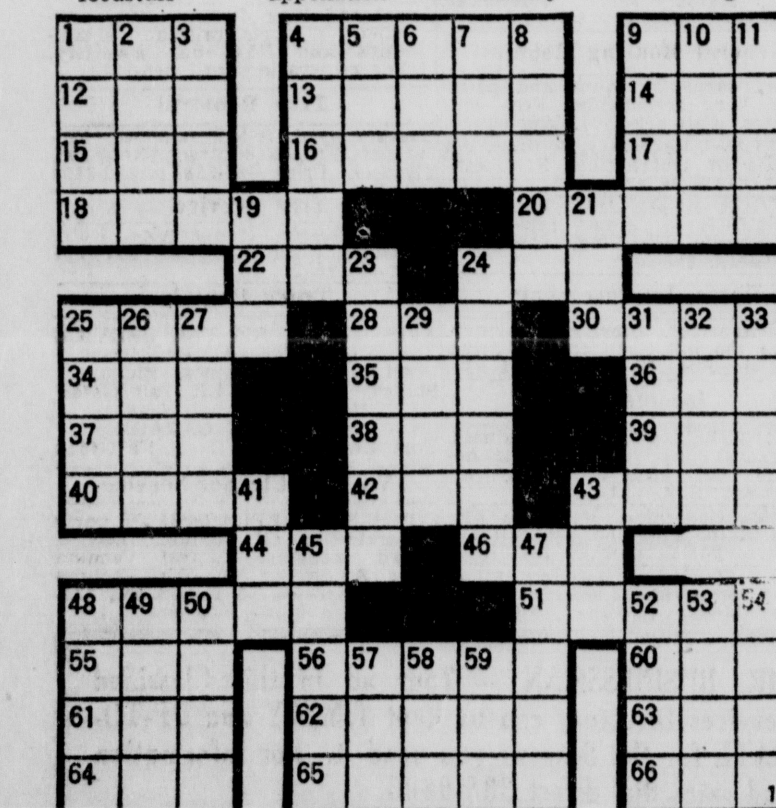

If she decides she wants to start dating one boy steadily she will have to pick out a boy who likes her enough and whom she likes enough. Only she and he can take action. You can't.

*Don't you find it wonderful, Father, to realize it's more than 275 shopping days till next Christmas?"

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 12, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Wise to keep business prospects in mind. Don't dilute efforts. Get routine tasks out of way. Don't overlook essentials. If alert, you gain objective. Career advances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect today coincides with ability to project, express and convince. Means you can picture plans and help them become realities. Have faith in your own future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Dispute over finances can be resolved. Make gesture of reconciliation to family member. Intelligent concession can result in gain. Know this — act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stress willingness to accept truth. Others are anxious to be in spotlight. Don't block them. Wise to play waiting game. Avoid seeing situation in too idealistic a light. Be practical.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Find out how to save time, effort. Means be aware of what's causing waste, loss. Get job done. Then you can relax. You might receive news from relative in transit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): May be conflict of interest. Loved one could make excessive demands. But job, other tasks require your attention. Base actions on logic. Be patient and persistent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid showdown at home. Realize some close to you today are supersensitive. Accent on ability to recognize money-making opportunity. Check property values.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't try to be everywhere at once. Accent on short trips, messages. Hunch proves accurate. Follow through on inner feeling. Keep promise made to relative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Day features tendency to be careless with possessions. Guard interests. Debts are paid, collected. Emphasis on what you own. Exploit unique abilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are aware of influence you have on others. Maintain steady pace. Start rather than finish; means get going on project which claims your interest. Be inventive, original.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Catch up on rest; guard right to privacy. Be discreet. One who confides in you deserves consideration. React in mature manner. Don't cast first stone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give attention to career. Income potential. Confide in family member. Advice received can be put to profitable use. Some of your hopes come closer to realities.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have fine sense of humor. You tend to attract those who take advantage of you. Be more selective. Social activities due to multiply.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for CAPRICORN, AQUARIUS. Special word to VIRGO: change you seek is due.

(To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women." Send birthday and 50 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 1017.)

Bridge Minor Suit Bid Helps Scores

By Oswald & James Jacoby

three diamonds he would go down only one provided he played carefully.

Modern one-spade popenors wouldn't get to the three level. North would respond one no-trump, play it there and go down two or three.

The one-club opening leads easily to a two-diamond contract. South rebids one heart, not one spade. North has a chance to raise if he has hearts, or to bid one spade if he has four spades. Of course, North bids two diamonds, plays it and makes his contract.

With 20 high card points on each side it would seem that either side could make a part score. This is true. North and South can make two diamonds, East and West can make two or maybe even three no-trump.

People who favor a spade opening with the South hand point out the pre-emptive value of that suit and explain that it is easy for the opponents to get into the bidding against a club opening but far harder against a spade bid.

Every sort of bid turns out to be a winner on occasion. We have seen times when a spade opening does shut the opponents out. We have seen just about as many times when a club opening gets the job done. We do know that it is far easier to find the right contract when you start with a club.

If North were allowed to play! (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

ABC Turns Off 'Turn-On'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Turn-On," a new ABC-TV series attacked as "dirty," has been shelved after one performance. The sponsor, the network and some dissatisfied stations put the clamps Sunday on the half-hour topical comedy show that had its premiere only last Wednesday.

The move jolted Hollywood practitioners of television's so-called "new frankness," as exemplified by "Laugh-In" and the Smothers Brothers Show.

It was considered in these circles a significant step after several years in which risque and controversial material had suddenly deluged television, from talk shows to specials to regular series.

Stations in Cleveland, Denver and Little Rock, Ark., canceled "Turn-On" last week. One station manager wrote ABC: "If your naughty little boys have to write dirty words on walls, please don't use our walls. It's all right to be racy, but this is just plain dirty."

George Schlatter, executive producer of "Laugh-In" and "Turn-On," said Tom and Dick Smothers, Nancy Sinatra and Tony Newley were among performers who volunteered to be on the new show.

"Turn-On" using double entendre and barbs about hot subjects, was hosted by a computer, and employed electronic distortion, graphics and animation in emphasizing impersonality in modern life. It moved at a fairly fast pace.

"Bold Step"

Schlatter said the show was a "bold step," and that he had "nothing but respect" for ABC-TV and the sponsor for trying "Turn-On" last week. "I'm shocked and disappointed. I can't believe they'd take it off the air," Schlatter said. "The...we also said that the programs are unacceptable to the network."

The statement said: "ABC understands that Bristol-Myers has sent a wire to the company, producers of 'Turn-On' stating that the shows are this point, is to arrive at a production immediately. 'The...we also said that the programs are unacceptable to the network.' Schlatter said he was told Bristol-Myers about "Turn-On" meetings about "Turn-On" would be held this week. Schlatter-Friendly Production Sources said, however, that the Company, producers of 'Turn-On' purpose of meetings, at this point, is to arrive at a

HUDSON
Jolane Marie Karic, 17-year-old Hudson High School senior, was beaten to death with a claw hammer and a small knife about an hour after she left a friend's birthday party at a local snack shop Friday night, it was revealed Monday by authorities.

Michael Joseph Nero, 18, a classmate of the pretty brunette, was rearraigned yesterday before Columbia County Judge William F. Christiana on a murder charge. The youth rubbed his eyes to stop tears during the court proceedings, and his mother, Mrs. Anthony Nero of Joselyn Boulevard wept openly in a seat behind the 5-foot-7, slight blond suspect in the brutal murder that shocked this community.

Coroner Donald Tkacy had said Saturday after an autopsy only that the victim of the slaying, a sister of State Trooper Peter Karic, 23, of Claverack, that the girl died of a fractured skull. The information that a claw hammer and knife caused the wounds on the brutally beaten head and face of the dead girl was revealed at a reconvened arraignment Monday.

Tkacy has declined comment on whether Miss Karic, whose coat-covered partially clad body apparently was dumped on a snowbank near a house on Route 31, was raped or otherwise molested.

Judge Christiana yesterday concurred with a recommendation of District Attorney Roger Minor that no bail be set, particularly since the county grand jury is presently in session and will investigate the case immediately.

"This is a brutal, tragic and extremely unfortunate situation," Judge Christiana was quoted. "I am accepting Mr. Miner's recommendation that you be held without bail," he added as he looked at the weeping suspect.

Public Defender Adolf Matties will represent Nero at future proceedings. He said the defendant's family originally sought to retain him as a private attorney, and he told the court the youth's family does not have funds for an attorney, so he will take the case as public defender.

Matties entered a formal plea of innocent. That is mandatory in murder cases under New York State law. The youth was committed to the county jail, in a car, without telling any of her friends where she was going, it was reported.

Friends of the dead girl told authorities that she had attended a birthday party at a Hudson snack bar Friday night, slaying.

Her partially clothed body, covered with a coat, was discovered Saturday morning in a snowbank off a rural road about six miles south of here. Harold Ellis and Donald Kline Jr., son of the Livingston town supervisor, made the gruesome discovery as they rode along a road on the Kline farm. Funeral services for the girl were held at 9 a. m. today from the Redmond and Keller Funeral Home, and at 9:30 at St. Mary's Church. High school classmates of Miss Karic were bearers. Burial was scheduled in Cedar Park Cemetery.

The drawing of architectural plans for a $2.16 million addition to the Red Hook Mill Road Elementary School was authorized at Monday night's meeting of the school board.

Herbert C. Petz moved that the school architect draw preliminary plans and Dr. George F. Michael seconded the move stating that regardless of proposed state school aid cuts, the "need" for increasing the elementary facility "is there."

Hopefully Less

District Principal Russell Keefe, comparing the $18.70 per square foot cost of the Mill Road School with the proposed $22 a square foot for the addition said, he felt the current figure was more than adequate and that hopefully the bids will be less when they come in.

Several members agreed on the need for additional school space saying that population projections, just released, show the school board's estimates to be low by comparison. The board was unanimous in its decision with no opposition expressed.

In other discussion the board considered the problem of coping with student use of narcotics.

More Tests

Acknowledging that the use of drugs among students exists in Red Hook, as it does elsewhere, various members of the board commented on an assembly-filed bill which increases the number of medical examinations per pupil per semester. Specifically it states: "that beginning with the first semester of seventh grade, elementary school, and continuing until graduation from high school, all pupils shall be examined at least once, but not more than twice, during each semester for determination of any visible signs for drug use, with examination to be made by licensed physician, school nurse or registered nurse and with pupil not to be required to submit to any type of urine analysis, blood test or any other chemical test."

Dr. Michael commenting on the proposal said, "it has heart, but no basis for application." He agreed that it is good to have each child examined once but that the placing of a limit on the number was "ridiculous...this is a bunch of garbage. They should be examined when they need it, he suggested.

Others on the board, including its president, Francis A. Rabbett all spoke freely of the problem saying there are eight to 10 known drug users in the school environment and, "if we could put the finger on them, we would be doing something."

Keefe pointed out that the yearly once a year medical examination of its 800 pupils cannot do...it can't even difficulty in accomplishing the and that the administration is administer an aspirin.

Dowling to Be Nominated As Mayor of Ellenville

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

ELLENVILLE

Village Trustee Robert Dowling will be nominated for mayor on the Republican ticket at Friday night's caucus.

Contacted by The Freeman, Dowling said that he had not yet made up his mind but that he would answer the big question at the caucus.

Dowling, finishing his first full year as trustee, is apparently in the best position to run for the top slot of four men mentioned to challenge Democratic Mayor Eugene Glusker, the 14-year incumbent. Unlike Republican Trustee Edwin Hoar, Dowling's term does not expire in March and he can therefore run for mayor without having to give up his trustee's seat.

Has the Background

Dowling also has the background of governmental experience he can point to in any battle with the long-time mayor, unlike Rivan Krieger and Robert F. Woodhouse, both of whom were mentioned for the top honor. Informed sources within the Republican ranks have indicated that Hoar and Krieger are prepared to make the trustee race under the Dowling banner.

Incumbent Hoar runs a successful refrigerator sales and service shop on Main Street in the village, and Krieger is the coordinator of the Catskill Resort Association, Inc.

Dowling is a correction officer at the Catskill Reformatory in Napanoch.

We were called by the people in charge of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church at 93 Abruyn Street, Kingston, during 1962 at which time they had taken part of the steeple down. It is believed to be the oldest known cast-concrete structure in the country, a monolithic building common today but unique at the time. Most people living in this area at that time, worked for the Newark Lime and Cement Company which donated the cement from the so-called "caves" off Delaware Avenue. They are not actually caves, but, rather, mines, or, underground quarries where the cement rock and lime were worked.

In removing the steeple, great damage was done to the slate roof which we temporarily repaired in 1962 with the idea that either the slate would be repaired or a new roof would be put on sometime in the future.

Years went by. We talked at various times about what should be done, and recommended two or three years ago that the concrete parapet walls, front and rear of the church, should be removed as well as the slate, and new gutters and new roofing be applied. This was a long project involving five years of discussion, which was finally brought to a conclusion satisfactory to all.

We don't give up 'til we reach a happy ending.
